CITRUS CROP UNDAMAGED BY FROST

Extensive Smudging Saves Fruit; Report Cold Wave Will Continue

BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—California's citrus fruit crop, worth many millions of dollars, was saved from frost damage by extensive smudging operations, it was indicated today on the face of early reports from the affected districts. Many points in Southern California reported temperatures of 26 degrees above zero.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—Freezing temperatures prevailing over California early today may have caused considerable crop damage.

Warnings that heavy frosts would prevail may have enabled citrus and other fruit growers to take steps to protect their trees against the cold wave which sent the thermometers to new low levels for the winter throughout the state.

As the trees are dormant at this time of the year, no damage to the deciduous fruits was expected to result from the cold weather.

Cold to Continue

Northern California citrus growers had reported no damage early today and the belief was expressed that the thorough smudging operations carried on would save the crop unless the freezing weather is too long prolonged.

Mount Wilson was the coldest spot last night with 15 degrees above zero registered early today.

Commend Evening News For Its Stand On Politics

Announcement in The Glendale Evening News yesterday that the publisher of this newspaper, a member of the Glendale Republican club, wishes to be released from all obligations when the club—or any organization whatsoever—injects politics into municipal affairs, received general commendation, judging by telephone and personal messages received. The publisher of this newspaper, as outlined yesterday, believes that it is the right of the club to take part in state and national politics, but does not believe that it is the duty of the club to participate in municipal politics. The people themselves should have full charge of selecting their representatives, presenting the best men and women available, regardless of political, religious or fraternal affiliations. This view seems to have the support of the citizens generally, judging by expressions reaching this newspaper since the publication yesterday of the statement by The Glendale Evening News' publisher. Participation by a political organization in municipal politics presumed to be non-partisan, is a dangerous move, as will be shown should the occasion necessitate. In the meantime, the publisher of The Glendale Evening News wishes to take this occasion to express appreciation to the many persons who have stated their approval of the stand taken by this newspaper.

WORLD'S CROP OF WHEAT IN SLUMP

Decrease of 440,000,000 Bushels Under Last Year Is Seen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—A decrease of about 440,000,000 bushels in the estimated world wheat crop, as compared with last year, is indicated by reports received by the department of agriculture today. The estimates for this year is 3,330,000,000 bushels compared with 3,740,000,000 produced in 1923, and 3,400,000,000 bushels in 1922.

The condition of winter wheat in the United States was 81. per cent of normal on December 1, compared with 88.0 per cent last year.

The condition of the rye crop was 87.3, compared with a condition of 89.9 a year ago.

The area of winter wheat sown this fall is 42,317,000 acres, which is 6.5 per cent more than the revised estimate of 39,749,000 acres sown in the fall of 1923. The sowings in the fall of 1922 were 46,100,000 acres. Winter damage during the past ten years has caused an average abandonment of 10.6 per cent of the acreage sown to winter wheat. The abandonment has ranged from 1.1 per cent to 28.9 per cent in different years during that period.

The area sown to rye this fall is 4,206,000 acres, which is .8 per cent more than the revised estimate of 4,173,000 acres sown in the fall of 1923.

TUNNEL FLOOD CONTROL PLAN ENDORSED

County Engineer Reagan In Favor of Project He Informs Citizens

James W. Reagan, chief county flood control engineer, unqualifiedly endorsed the plan for diversion of Sycamore canyon flood waters into Verdugo wash by way of a tunnel connecting the two river beds, in an address before 150 leading Glendale citizens at the formal opening of the new Union Pacific station here today.

Mr. Reagan declared that he has at all times favored the diversion of the Sycamore canyon water into Verdugo wash, and has opposed the plan to carry the flood overflow down Sycamore Canyon drive to an open conduit at the south end of the city.

Makes Explanation

The engineer declared that only the fear that such a move would have invalidated the entire $35,000,000 bond issue recently voted kept him from providing for the tunnel in that issue. He said that the bonds were voted as a strictly water conservation proposition in order to get a large favorable vote, but that flood control was equally as vital and was to be cared for at the same time.

Plans for the tunnel are ready and only await the favorable action of the Board of Supervisors, he said. The day after the supervisors adopt one plan or the other, work by the flood control department can be commenced.

Seek Agreement

The question of whether the tunnel or the completion of the Sycamore canyon road project will be ordered, is strictly up to the people of Glendale, the flood engineer declared. The supervisors are willing to endorse whichever plan is agreed upon, but they do insist on agreement, refusing to become entangled in any strictly municipal controversy.

Mr. Reagan also declared that Verdugo wash constitutes the most serious flood menace in the state of California and said that he fully realized that ample flood control measures must be immediately taken to insure against damage along the Verdugo frontage whether the tunnel is put through or not.

Plans Big Tunnel

Engineer Reagan told the assemblage of plans for a great tunnel and conduit to connect Little Tujunga canyon with Devil's Gate dam.

Such a conduit, he said, would divert headwaters which sweep down on Glendale during storms to the dam at Pasadena where the water could be stored and used. He also advocated a second dam below the present Devil's gate dam to care for the water draining from hills just north and west of Pasadena.

A great dam near Tujunga to cost seven million dollars, and to

"Despite a heavy bombardment of the Dipra frontier by the Serbs, the situation favors the Albanian troops."

Propose $2,500,000.00 School Bond Issue

COMMITTEE REPORTS GIVEN AT MEETING

Facts And Figures On Intermediate, Elementary And High Systems Are Submitted; Election First Of Year

A committee of representative citizens last night heard the full report of the proposed Glendale Union High school and Glendale city school expansion program, which contemplates a bond issue of approximately $2,500,000; and after going into the matter in full with the members of the two boards, they endorsed the program with but one dissenting voice. Herman Nelson, vice-president and manager of the Glendale avenue branch, Pacific-Southwest Trust & Savings bank, present at the meeting as a representative of the Glendale Advancement association, voted "no."

The meeting was held at the Broadway High school, and was presided over by Albert D. Pearce, president of the Glendale Union High school board of trustees. There were present as school officials all the members of the high school board: Dr. Henry V. Brown, clerk; H. W. Yarick, A. W. Tower and George H. Bentley, together with George U. Moyse, principal, and Irving H. Oliver, business manager. There were present from the Glendale city board of education: Mrs. A. A. Barton, president; Judge Harry W. Chase, secretary; Mrs. Arthur C. Brown and E. H. Learned. Illness prevented D. J. Hibben from being present. Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, and John T. Cate, business manager, were also present.

Explains Negative Vote

In declining to add his voice to the otherwise unanimous endorsement of the $2,500,000 school bond program, which is to be divided approximately half and half between the two systems, Mr. Nelson stated:

"I am heartily in favor of the elementary school plan but feel that the high school plan is too indefinite. At a time when we are all trying to reduce taxes, I feel that it is unnecessary to erect another large high school plant in Glendale. There are not the pupils to warrant it."

His statement was refuted by Prinicpal Moyse with figures that showed the enrollment of the Glendale Union High school system to be 777 in 1918 and 2282 for 1923, with 2050 enrolled thus far in 1924.

"In what particular is the high school plan indefinite?" demanded Trustee Tower.

"The junior high school plan you propose is a duplication of work," replied Mr. Nelson.

Looking to Future

"There is no junior high school contemplated in this program before us," declared Mr. Tower. "That is something far in the future. All we are doing now is looking enough ahead to provide sites that may be used for junior high schools at some later time, if it is ultimately decided to adopt the 6-3-3 plan (six years of elementary work, three years of junior high school and three years of senior high school)."

The vote to endorse the proposed bond issue came on motion of Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, second of O. M. Newby, representing the West Broadway Improvement association. James W. Everington, representing the Foothill Improvement association, acted as temporary chairman of the meeting for the purpose of the vote.

Another Meeting

Following this concrete approval of the large construction and expansion program outlined by the two boards, Chairman Pierce announced that within a few days the two boards will meet again, when a date will be set to go before the registered voters of the Glendale school district with a request for the necessary $2,500,000 worth of bonds.

Teh following representatives of local organizations were among those present last night:

Gentlemen:—In July, 1924, the joint board representing the Glendale Union High school district and the Glendale city board of education adopted the following program in connection with the high school needs of the district:

1—The purchase of a site for and the construction of a senior high school in the northwest section of Glendale.

2—The completion of Broadway High school plant.

3—The purchase of a high school site in the Sunland-Tujunga section.

4—The purchase of a high school site in the La Crescenta-Montrose section.

Your subcommittee, appointed for the purpose of securing options on sites and estimates on the costs of various improvements desired, begs to submit the following:

SITES
Northwest Section

There appear to be three available sites in this district:

(a) The Gardner site, of approximately twenty acres. No option has yet been secured, but it is understood that the property may be purchased at a cost of $200,000.

(b) Twenty acres in the Pelanconi tract. An option on this property has been secured at a price of $200,000.

(c) About twenty acres, comprising three pieces of land, lying between Kenneth road and Glenwood road, options for which have been secured at a price of $10,000 per acre.

Sunland-Tujunga Section

No option has yet been secured for site in this section.

La Crescenta-Montrose Section

One option has been received for ten acres, situated between Montrose and La Crescenta, at a price of $29,000, graded and cleared.

BUILDINGS
Northwest

It is estimated that a suitable plant for this section will cost about $600,000.

Completion of Broadway Plant

Basing our estimate upon figures given by Architect John C. Austin about two years ago, it will require approximately $300,000 to complete the Broadway plant.

SUMMARY

From the facts as we have them at the present time, the total cost of carrying out the program adopted by the joint board will be approximately as follows:

Site in the Northwest	$ 200,000
Plant in the Northwest and equipment	625,000
Total	$ 825,000
Sites for Montrose, La Crescenta, Tujunga and Sunland	75,000

REPORT OF ESTIMATED COSTS SUBMITTED BY THE SUB-COMMITTEE ON INTERMEDIATE AND ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS

To the members of the Joint Committee of the Board of Trustees of Glendale Union High School and the Glendale City Board of Education.

Gentlemen:—Your sub-committee on the Intermediate and Elementary Building Program desires to submit the following report:

The costs stated for new sites and additions to present sites are based upon signed agreements, property owners' statements of prices and estimates by the committee.

As to building costs we have consulted two architects and feel that in this field our estimates ought to be reasonably accurate.

In the matter of equipment too, a survey of the present market coupled with our past experience has, we believe, enabled us to reach fairly accurate conclusions.

Probably it will be best for the purposes of this report to classify the schools into three classes, viz., Intermediate Schools, Present Elementary Schools, New Elementary Schools, New Elementary Sites and Buildings, and under each class to list the schools seperately.

URGES BUDGET FOR EVERY HOUSEWIFE

Los Angeles Banker Outlines Systematic Spending of Average Income

"Economy must begin in the home and the home must have a budget, which is a systematic spending of the income," Douglas Buckler of the Hellman bank, Los Angeles, told the Glendale High school Parent-Teacher association, meeting yesterday afternoon at Harvard High school. Although a student of economy and engaged in banking Mr. Buckler offered no set budget system for the home.

"A shoe manufacturer cannot make a shoe that will fit everyone, you must buy the shoe that is your size," he said. "Just so men and women cannot sit in offices and draft budgets to fit homes they know nothing about. The best person to make a budget for your home is yourself. You know what your income is and where and how it must be spent. Budgeting is the systematic spending of the income. I advise you to work out your own budget. It won't be satisfactory the first month, and maybe not the second, but when you become adjusted to it you will find it the better way of home management.

"There are eighty-nine out of every 100 people, who are dependent at the age of 60. This means that only eleven people out of every 100 understand thrift, which is the conservation of energy, resulting in mental satisfaction and comfort in later years. Let us think of thrift that way instead of denial and saving for sickness or death."

Mrs. W. R. Wichert, president, was in charge of the meeting. A report on membership showed that the association now claims 230 members, which is more than were enrolled at the end of last year. An offering of $3 was taken by Girl Scouts as the association's contribution to Near East relief. Announcement was made of the meeting of the school boards and organizations' representatives last night at Broadway High school.

Allen Kraemer and Mary Ann Fleming, talented young violin pupils of Julius Kranz, Glendale artist teacher, entertained with solos.

WE ARE OLD FASHIONED ENOUGH—

To believe that a certain amount of work is good for any child.
To remember that the Sabbath day was meant to be kept holy.
To try hard work and economy as a remedy for hard times.
To insist upon women holding modesty in high esteem.
To expect that any law for the good of the people can be enforced.

CONFER WITH LEGISLATORS

An exchange suggests that this would be a good time for business organizations, Chambers of Commerce, farmers' clubs and individuals to call their legislators into friendly counsel. And there is no doubt but our legislators would appreciate such a course. Most of the men we elect to represent us really want to do what is right, they really wish to serve the people they represent, but when their constituents refuse to become interested in public affairs, when the people feel that in electing legislators they have done their full duty, naturally these legislators go off on their own tangents and do what they think is right, or what they find to be expedient. And then, when it is all over, we object to what they have done or have not done.

A man recently said that in the dozen years or more he had been serving his district in the state Legislature of California he had been approached but three times by his constituents in regard to measures that were, or were to come, before the Legislature.

This would be a good time to tell our legislators that we need very few new laws passed during the coming session of the state Legislature.

THE FARMER'S PROBLEM

The problem of the farmer today is markets and distribution, and not production, and those who are making a study of the farmer's needs are advocating co-operative marketing. President Coolidge recently said that we need in agriculture more organization, co-operation and diversification, and that has been his attitude whenever he has spoken of agricultural conditions. The grain farmer gets 33 cents out of the dollar the consumer pays for his product. Through co-operative marketing this could be raised to 50 cents. Gray Silver, American Farm Bureau Federation representative at Washington, says: "The thing to do is to reduce the spread between the producer and the consumer. This means, cut out some of the middlemen. They say 40 bushels of grain are traded in for every bushel produced. That costs money. Co-operative marketing will put a stop to much of the gambling. It will bring the producer and consumer nearer to each other. That will be progress toward better things for farmers."

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, favors a plan that would amount to forcing the independent grower into marketing associations.

BANISH THE GUN

A Fresno man has been added to the long list of those who have taken human life just because they happened to have guns in their hands. A neighbor youth returning home under the influence of liquor came to his front door and made a noise. Thinking it was a burglar, the man crept around the house with his gun and shot the boy dead. Now he wishes he had never owned a gun.

The average person is not to be trusted with firearms. In the moment when discretion is most needed he loses his head and then the gun goes off. The revolver should be banished as a part of the equipment of the home, even though it may give a feeling of security, for it becomes a source of trouble and grief more often than a means of protection.

Firearms are used all too promiscuously in the movies, making it seem to the young and to the adult, too, that it is a wise thing to carry a gun and use it. The pictures have helped to foster the shooting thought in our minds and have made the use of firearms more general. A gun is a potential trouble-maker with which even the coolest of us cannot afford to take chances.

PROSPERITY AND REVOLUTION

An industrial journal makes the statement that industry in the United States earns an annual income of sixty-one billion dollars. This is 54.5 per cent of the total income of the American people and indicates that we have become an industrial nation to more than fifty per cent of the national earnings. It shows also that the people of this country enjoy an annual income exceeding a hundred billion dollars.

It is almost impossible to realize the immense prosperity of our country. It cannot be compared with that of any country in any age. Nowhere else are there or have there ever been masses of the people living in such comfort and luxury and having so much leisure for pleasure and self-improvement. In the face of this it is difficult to believe that radicals and communists of the type that slip through Ellis Island and their converts in this country can ever be strong enough to constitute a menace in a country where such results have been accomplished.

EMANCIPATION OF WOMEN

It would seem that the emancipation of women is complete, now that the ladies of Paris have refused to purchase and wear the hats which the Paris milliners have decreed is "the thing." The women say they will wear their summer and fall hats all winter rather than give their approval to the style of headdress advanced by the style-makers.

Politcally, economically and socially, women have become emancipated, and now that they have declared themselves free of the Paris milliners and modistes they have attained the ultimate in independence. It now remains for American women to follow the example of their Paris sisters and declare their independence of those who design the styles, and especially of foreign style-makers. If American women must still be slaves, let them be in bondage to their own countrymen.

CONTROVERSY IN THE CHURCH

If the modernists and fundamentalists would stop arguing, get down to business and preach the gospel they would do much more good in the world. The most of us do not know what it is about, anyway, and we do not care very much. A modernist, the other day, argued that prehistoric years were so short that Methuselah actually died at the age of 80 instead of living to be 969. A fundamentalist came back with the retort that on the same basis of calculation, Adam was a father at the age of 9 and Enoch at the age of 5. Such controversy is childish, silly and undignified and tends to detract from the reverence in which the Bible is held. When the world needs a message of hope and cheer it is too bad that churchmen must spend their time quarreling.

The automobile has annihilated both distance and pedestrian.

A TOUGH JOB—!

The God of Little Things

By DR. FRANK CRANE

God is generally supposed to be a God of the Great Things, of storms, of earthquakes, of volcanoes and of planetary orbits.

But great things are made up of little things.

As someone has expressed it, "Success is composed of the little things, but Success is no little thing."

Attention has recently been called, in scientific circles, to the divisions of the atom. Already the atom is not considered the smallest division of nature, but is supposed to be made up of electrons and protons, which are in constant motion.

Even in such substances as marble and stone the electrons are supposed to revolve about the protons very much in the same way as our planets revolve around the sun.

If there be a God, therefore, He must devote His attention to the infinitely small, even more than He does to the infinitely great. To suppose a God who only attended to generalities is to suppose Him subject to the same limitations as the human mind. Human beings only attend to large things and do not bother about details on account of their limitations. But it is easy to suppose that, if there be a God, details are no burden to Him and He must attend to the motion of atoms quite as conscientiously as He does to the motion of planets.

The God of little furry things, of insects and of primordial life is infinitely more to be admired than a God of storms and other motions.

In fact, it is difficult to conceive of a Being who controls the great things of the universe who does not at the same time control the small things, for it is the small things that make up the great, and there could be no control of one without the control of the other.

It is even supposed that personality is made up of a stream of conscious impressions. No one knows what personality is. All that we know is that it not only has a continuity, but that in its memory small things are of great value.

Great things are naturally more impressive to the human mind, but small events are as impressive to the philosopher as great things and thier combination and interplay make up that which is large and which leaps more significantly to the eye.

Horoscope

While Saturn and Mercury are in benefic aspect today, according to astrology, Uranus is adverse.

This should be a most favorable rule for dealing in real estate and for making trades in valuable property.

Real estate is to become more and more prominent in the interest of the average person and will be the subject of scientific training.

Mercury is in a place fortunate for the signing of contracts and leases, but it is well for the home to be bought, not rented under this direction of the stars.

Good health is forecast as a feature of the holiday prophesies, for the stars are kindly in making for good digestion.

Confectioners should benefit greatly at this time when there will be an extraordinary number of banquets, even for the season.

Early in the morning there is an adverse aspect which inclines toward impulsiveness, haste, impatience and poor judgment.

It is well to be especially careful to avoid risky ventures today, for speculation will be most unfortunate.

There is a fairly good sign for routine business, but it is especially favorable for the casting up of accounts and the settling of old debts.

This is not a fortunate sway for inventors, who should be cautious about guarding their secrets.

Aviation is not so safe today, as it is under the usual direction of the December stars.

The death of a near relative to the King of England is prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not travel or remove. They should concentrate on business in the coming months.

Children born on this day may be restless and unsettled. Those subjects of Sagittarius usualy are gifted and persevering. Many geniuses are born under this sign.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED

Today's Poem

YOUTH'S AGITATIONS

When I shall be divorced, some ten years hence,
From this poor present self which I am now;
When youth has done its tedious vain expense
Of passions that forever ebb and flow;

Shall I not joy youth's heats are left behind,
And breathe more happy in an even clime?
Ah no! for then I shall begin to find
A thousand virtues in this hated time.

Then I shall wish its agitation back,
And all its thwarting currents of desire;
Then I shall praise the heat which then I lack,
And call this hurrying fever, generous fire;

And sigh that one thing only has been lent
To youth and age in common—discontent.

—MATHEW ARNOLD

Serbia lost 127,535 men in the World war.

Who's Who

First an heroic figure in the World war and then a tragic one through an unfortunate situation, General Count Cadorna has come back to his own in Italy.

Of all the acts of the Mussolini regime there has been none more popular both at home and abroad than the reparation made to Count Cadorna for the obloquy heaped upon him after the disaster sustained by the main portions of his army at Caporetto in October, 1917. It may be remembered that the then Italian Prime Minister Orlando was seized with panic, and refusing to accept the plea that Cadorna had not only arrested the retreat of his troops, and had established them in an absolutely impregnable position on the banks of the Piave—arguments advanced by both Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir William Robertson—he then and there deprived Cadorna of his command, placed him on the retired list and supplanted him as generalissimo by his friend, Gen. Diaz, who reaped all the fruits of the ultimate victory on conclusion of the armistice.

And now, seven years after Cadorna's dismissal from his command amidst general obloquy, reparation has come. King Victor Emmanuel, on the nomination of Mussolini, has created for the first time in Italian history the rank of field marshal, and has bestowed it not only on Gen. Diaz, but also on Gen. Count Cadorna, thus restoring him to active service, since field marshals in Great Britain and in France, as well as formerly in Russia, in Germany and in what was once the Dual Empire, have the privilege and prerogative of remaining on the active list on full pay for the remainder of their lives, without regard to the statutory age limit.

And, just to show the extent to which Mussolini and his king have gauged the popular sentiment of their countrymen, it may be stated that the bestowal of this tardy honor upon Count Cadorna has coincided with the presentation to him of a beautiful and palatial villa and large estate at Pallanza, his native city, paid for with subscriptions raised within a month by the veterans of the armies which fought under his command during the first two years of the war as a token of their affection, gratitude and pro found admiration.

VOLSTEAD ACT APPLIED TO 'CITIZEN'

Federal Judge Rules Out Aliens Because They Possessed Liquor

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 18.—While "thousands upon thousands" of the "best people" of the United States are "notoriously indulging themselves in the unlawful possession of liquor, "is it fair to bar from American citizenship four aliens who during their five years' term of probation in this country have been convicted of violating the Volstead act by making or possessing liquors for their own use?

Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson of this district has just decided that it is, and has filed a very thoughtful opinion which is likely to serve as a guide at other bars of justice where the final fitness of a person to become an American citizen is passed upon.

Not many American citizens know just what the last test of good citizenship really is. As imposed upon the alien it is a question as to whether or not during five years at least he has "behaved as a man of good moral character attached to the general principles of the constitution of the United States and well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same."

Judge Hutcheson says that any man applying for citizenship and violating meantime the constitutional amendment on prohibition is not "attached" to say the least, to the general principles of that instrument of justice and freedom.

It was argued in behalf of the aliens that the "thousands upon thousands" of Americans who are daily violating the constitution are not even upon conviction, deprived of their citizenship; it was argued that the offenses of the would-be citizens were mere misdemeanors, no worse in fact than a violation of the traffic laws or any engagement at fisticuffs. But Judge Hutcheson's rulings on these points are all interesting. Briefly they are:

Judge's Rulings

"The petitioners assert that this court has admitted applicants although it has appeared that during their probation they have been arrested for violating traffic laws, for engaging in fistic encounters, etc., and that there can be no soundness in the distinction between a liquor misdemeanor and a traffic misdemeanor.

"If I were inclined to a distinction between the measure of guilty reprobation involved in breaking traffic laws, and that involved in breaking the non-commercial features of the Volstead act by a comparison of the ease and apparent facility with which our good citizens accomplish both, I would be hard put to it to determine which law is less regarded.

"As between fistic encounters and Volstead violations I might place the distinctions upon the grounds that 'Millions for defense' applies in this country in a just cause to personal as well as national controversies and the ability to defend by sound round blows is an Anglo-Saxon right which ought not lightly to be taken away.

Matter of Right

"To minds sensitive to the reproach of the pharisaism and honorable enough to see ourselves as others see us there is no doubt that the complacent attitude of many of our good citizens toward the violation of the 18th amendment makes the United States in its prosecution of the ignorant and the poor appear to be engaged to some extent in a piece of colossal humbuggery, nor can I avoid the feeling that it may appear to some to savor of judiciary pecksniffianism to refuse an application for citizenship for doing what common repute declares is approved in best society.

"The rules governing naturalization, however, point the way for me to follow. Neither traffic laws, nor laws concerning breaches of the peace, through fistic encounters, rest upon or are embodied in the constitution. The prohibition amendment is an integral part of the constitution, and if I follow the law both literally and upon its reason I cannot hold that one who during his probationary period has deliberately violated that constitution and been convicted for such violation has shown himself attached to its principles."

Judge Hutcheson holds in effect, that granting American citizenship to foreigners is not a matter of right but rather one of grace and it behooves the applicant to be on his good behavior no matter how much the "best people" may continue to transgress.

The rejected aliens may apply again five years from their last convictions.

Locates Uncle By Means Of Story in News

The Development number of The Glendale Evening News was the means of giving word to Carl Graf, of Cincinnati, Ohio, of his uncle, John Graf of 122 West Elk street, whom he had not heard from or seen for a number of years. Mrs. Mary E. Shropshire, of 1841 South Brand boulevard sent a copy of the paper to her daughter, Miss Birdie Shropshire, who is an employe of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., at Cincinnati, Ohio, and she saw the picture of the John Graf apartment and the story which ran in connection. Miss Shropshire happened to think that there was a Mr. Graf in the life insurance office so she showed him the article. Mr. Graf stated that he knew his uncle was in Southern California but did not know just where, and was pleased to hear of him.

CHILDREN ASKED TO JOIN SINGING

Community Chorus Program Xmas Eve Planned By Glendale

All children of Glendale are urged to attend the rehearsal next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Harvard High school, when songs for the Community Christmas program will be practiced under the direction of Mrs. W. Q. Widdows. A group of carols sung by the children's chorus will be featured in the program, which will begin at 8 o'clock on Christmas Eve. Every child desiring to take part is invited.

The children will sing two verses of "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and of "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." Those who are unable to attend the rehearsal are asked to practice the songs at home and join the chorus on Christmas Eve.

A second chorus, composed of the Glendale Choral club, the Burbank Choral club, singers from the church choirs, the oratorio section of the Glendale Music club, the Eagle Rock Choral club and other musical organizations, will give several Christmas carols. This chorus will also present the "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah," with J. Arthur Myers directing.

Older Group

A rehearsal of the older group of singers and of the Glendale Symphony orchestra, which will accompany all numbers, will occur on Monday evening, December 22, in the Glendale Avenue schoolhouse. All singers of these various organizations are urged to attend.

The community program, which is held annually by the Glendale Community Service, will be particularly fine this year, the workers report. A special number will be the presentation of "Eager Heart," a Christmas allegory in pantomime form, under the direction of Gabriel Ravenelle of Pasadena, nationally known director and a specialist in the art of pantomime.

The program will be held on an outdoor stage on the Harvard High school grounds, with one of the fir trees decorated with lights and tinsel.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

One Dollar a Pound

"Dear Doctor: I weigh 152 pounds. Most of the fat seems to be around the stomach and abdomen. When I was married six years ago. I weighed only 109 pounds (a little too thin, perhaps) but now I am at least 20 pounds overweight. I told my husband this morning that I was sending for your booklet on reducing and that I was going to begin to count my calories. He said: 'Good. I'll give you a dollar for every pound you lose'; so you can see how he hates fat.—Mrs. R."

It is not uncommon, this gaining after marriage. The happiness is not the cause, however. In the majority of cases, it is due to the adaptation of the maxim that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," with the resultant cooking of delicious meals. In the large majority of cases, hubbies come in for these increases in weight too. In many cases there is also a lessening of working hours.

In six years you have gained over 40 pounds. That means an average of about seven pounds a year. Seven pounds of fat is equivalent to 28,000 calories (counting one pound of fat 4,000 calories) taken in excess of your needs. To see how many calories you have averaged a day over your needs, divide 28,000 by 365 and you will find you have averaged every day but 75 calories in excess. That means about two-thirds of a pat of butter, or slice of bread, or a small chocolate cream. Not very much! Perhaps you have taken this excess 75 in tasting while you were preparing meals? You can see from this how small an intake over the needs is required to amount up terrifically.

You will have to take some special exercises for your stomach and abdomen. We have an article on the atonic abdominal wall that gives some of the exercises in detail: kicking, raising your body from the floor, rolling, and so forth. Long walks taken with a long, brisk stride are also effective.

I am glad Mr. Husband is going to help you in your reduction. He is wise because it is going to improve your health and prevent a lot of troubles.

High Blood Pressure

Mrs. R.—Under the causes of high blood pressure are listed the following:

1. Psychic—fear, excitement, anger, excess worry. All these can produce a temporary rise. The internists say this is largely because of the pouring into the blood stream of the powerful secretions of the ductless glands. If these emotions are indulged in too frequently, there may be a permanent rise of the blood pressure.
2. Overeating and overdrinking.
3. Overexercise and overwork.
4. Chronic Toxemias.
5. Obesity.

Of course, No. 2 results in Nos. 4 and 5. A large insurance company states that of all the causes listed for high blood pressure, obesity seems to be the most persistent cause.

Under chronic toxemias would be chronic poisoning from decayed teeth, diseased tonsils, diseased nasal sinuses, running ears, and so forth.

Sometimes the taking of the blood pressure causes a nervousness that will send the register up from 5 to 20 points, so the first reading may be higher than the second one, even though the causes operating were not changed. Normal blood pressure for the adult should be approximately one hundred plus one-half the age.

Low blood pressure may be found in the debilitating diseases such as anemia and tuberculosis, but it apparently is normal in many cases. One insurance company that I asked about the subject, states that it did not consider low blood pressure alone as a debar to insurance.

Tuberculosis

We have articles on tuberculosis which you may have by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Are you buying your share of Christmas seals to help eradicate this disease?

Tomorrow—Answers to Mothers

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

NATURE'S COSMETICS

Many people think that beauty columns deal only with cold cold creams and such aids; sometimes our old friends, Average Husband and Pater Familias, write in and rebuke me for putting notions into the heads of their "women folk." They remind me of the scene when the old Vicar of Wakefield tipped the pot of cosmetics over into the fire and consoled his weeping family with a homily on the virtues of cold water and winter air, or something else equally chilly.

They're quite right, of course, so was the Vicar. Yet I wonder wickedly whether they're not a little bald on top (when they needn't be) and whether they don't now and then submit to hot towels and ointments recommended by the barber. For as long as cold creams are put up in such fascinating pots, and toilet waters in such ravishing bottles, so that the toilet goods departments are the most alluring part of any store, I don't see what any of us are going to do about it. Particularly as the women who use expensive cosmetics are usually better looking than those who go about with wispy hair and shiny noses.

It's true we overdo cosmetics. We rely on creams and astringents to make our complexions smooth when we ought to eat simply, exercise sufficiently and breathe enough good air to give us the rosy and fine complexions of the fiction heroines. We forget that hot and cold water has a tonic value not to be surpassed by the celeverest combination of lotions. A daily hot bath, a real scrubbing all over the body, a cold shower to follow, exercise indoors and exercise out of doors, plain food and eight hours' sleep with a thin pillow and the windows wide open is the best beauty treatment anyone of normal health could have. But it's not always possible with dirt rising from the street and descending from the clouds and with gasoline exhaust mingling with the already stale air of the cities.

Marie J. S.—Blushing can be controlled. Analyze the cause. For instance: If it is due to self-consciousness, you can prevent the blush by taking a deep breath and then hold it for a minute before exhaling. Repeat the breathing until you have regained your poise.

Helen G. D.—At 17 years, with height of 5 feet, 2 inches, your weight of 110 pounds is correct.

Mrs. John D. T.—Henna will always make a reddish color, and if your hair was black after the treatment there was a black dye used.

Goldie—Violet ray treatment is very stimulating and may be just what your scalp needs at this time.

Caroline Ellen—Tar soap is very good for dark hair, especially if there is any tendency to dandruff.

Goldie—At 22 years the fine lines in the skin are not serious, as they merely show there is need for a tonic, or possibly there is a lack of fresh air and too much time spent in an overheated house. Be sure to massage with cream every night when the skin is in this condition.

Tomorrow—Face Massage, No. 2

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The Editor,

The spirit of Christmas dominated the program yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the literature department of the Tuesday Afternoon club. Roll call was answered with Christmas thoughts, and a holiday program was arranged and presented by Mrs. Harry Wilcox. Marjorie Temple, entertained with a group of Italian dialect readings. Accompanied by Miss Clara Wolter she sang "To a Hill Top" (Cox), "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair" (Hayden), "Song of the Open" (Laforge), "O Holy Night" and "Little Town of Bethlehem." Mrs. Wilcox gave the Christmas story from Ben Hur. Mrs. Wilcox told of the Christmas tree celebration to be held for children at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, December 24 at the White Memorial hospital in Los Angeles, inviting the club women to attend. She also asked for home made cakes and pies for the Christmas dinner at the Midnight mission in Los Angeles, to be left with her the day before Christmas.

The popularity of the underarm bag continues. Today I saw one in a shop which any home woman could make. Indeed, there is so little work involved that it could be started and finished in one afternoon—therefore this article may appeal to women who have not yet finished all their Christmas gifts.

The bag in the shop was made of the new imported "Petit Point" ribbon which is thick, like tapestry, with cotton woof and a fine gold-thread warp. The six-inch-wide variety costs about $2.50 a yard. The bag was made of one-third yard of it, and lined with watered silk ribbon also six inches wide.

But if you cannot afford ribbon of this price, or cannot buy this particular kind of ribbon in your local shop, you could easily substitute any fairly stiff silk ribbon which was six inches wide. Buy a 12-inch length of it, and also a 12-inch length of colored moire silk ribbon of the same width (for the lining); the only other materials needed for the bag will be a small round mirror and enough narrow gold braid to run completely around the edges of the bag and make a loop on the flap, and also a small metal button for the fastening-loop to go over. You will also need a short length of half-inch-wide gold lace.

The shape of the bag when done, is exactly like the shape of an envelope. One-third of the length is turned up (that is, four inches out of the 12-inch length). Then the other end of the length is turned down over the fold and cut like a letter-flap (to a point in the middle, to which the gold-braid loop is attached.

Begin by placing the lining ribbon on the heavier ribbon, sewing it in place with tiny silk stitches along the edge. Fold up four inches of one end over the four inches in the center of the length, and catch into place on either side so as to form a pocket. Clip the other end of the length to pointed shape, turning the lining under and hemming neatly. Sew the narrow braid around all edges, having the loop at the point of the flap. Sew the button on the lower part of the bag where it will slip through the loop when the bag is closed. Finish by gathering the scalloped edge of the gold lace, forming a circle the size of the mirror, and then using this circle as a frame to hold the mirror inside the bag-flap, its ungathered edge being sewed to the bag-lining. This bag requires no handle. If desired, one could put a small ribbon pocket inside the bag, edged with braid.

Tomorrow—Making Your Mince and Pumpkin Pies.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman, in care of the "Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. Be sure to use YOUR full name, street number, and the name of your city and state.—The Editor.

AUTOMOBILE SECTION

GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, DEC. 18, 1924

WALL STREET SHAKEN BY DURANT

Auto Maker Takes Plunge In Cast Iron Stock And Cleans Up

By CHARLES A. WOLCOTT
Special Correspondent of the Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—There is a saying in Wall street that whatever Wm. C. Durant, the automobile manufacturer, touches is a thing charmed. His name has been prominently connected with the common stock of U. S. Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Co., which has had a spectacular rise recently and which advanced 13 points on Monday to the highest price at which it had ever sold.

Mr. Durant is thousands of miles away from Wall street, vacationing on the Pacific coast. Before he left New York it was reported that he had bought 60,000 shares of Cast Iron Pipe stock in the open market and that his profits—partly on paper—approximated $3,000,000. As a matter of fact, according to reliable reports today, Mr. Durant has less than 25,000 shares of the stock but his profits even on this amount are enormous.

There is an interesting "inside story" connected with Mr. Durant's dealings in Cast Iron Pipe stock. Strong banking interests who have been identified with some of the most successful enterprises in Wall street history, are said to have made overtures to Mr. Durant, either directly or indirectly for the purchase of some of the stock which he had accumulated since its abrupt advance, which began last fall.

King of Wall Street

First Mr. Durant was offered $135 a share for a comparatively small block of the stock but he refused. When the stock crossed that figure in the open market he was offered $150 a share for part of his holdings and now it is believed he could get $200 a share for every one he owns if he were willing to dispose of his present holdings.

Many experienced operators in Wall street have been wondering what there is about U. S. Cast Iron Pipe stock that makes it so attractive to the automobile manufacturer, who is reputed to have made—and lost—several fortunes in his dealings in the stock market. The company is said to have enough business in sight for 1925 to insure very large earnings on the stock, of which there is $12,000,000 of $100 par value outstanding. The estimates place the earnings as high as $75 to the $100 share.

These handsome profits have been made possible by the company's patented process for the manufacture of cast iron pipe. Mr. Durant's friends say that he saw these possibilities before anyone else and that his market activities advertised them so successfully that he is reaping the fruits of his wise investments.

Be that as it may, Mr. Durant is the most talked of man in "the street" today and while his profits pile up he is out on the coast enjoying himself.

Pays Fine For Driving Auto With One Hand

RIVERSIDE, Dec. 18.—Reckless driving, that is, driving with one arm around a young woman, cost one defendant in the court of Justice H. C. Hibbard at the regular Tuesday morning traffic session the small price of $25. He pleaded guilty to the charge of "reckless driving" without mincing matters before the judge, but confessed the particulars of the offense to the court's clerk on the side.

Western Auto Supply Co. Is Displaying Attractive Types for Cars

Christmas trees this year are going to be conspicuously decorated with spotlights for automobiles, judging from the demand for S & M spotlights as reported by C. H. Roudebush, local manager of the Western Auto Supply Co.

"Give something for the car" is the thought this year of thousands of motorists and the product of the S & M Manufacturing Co. has been found a most satisfactory answer to the puzzling gift problem.

The spotlight is a factor of safety, for on winding mountain roads the presence of the car on which it is equipped is made known, while in rainy or foggy weather an additional shaft of light is provided the driver and is more noticeable to oncoming traffic. For hunting house numbers or reading road signs at night, the spotlight is indispensable.

There is no law in this state forbidding the use of properly adjusted spotlights. The S. & M. patented feature of the regulating bracket permits easy adjustment to legal requirements.

HOLDUP SEEN IN HIGHWAY BUILDING

Too Much Enthusiasm for New Roads Blamed to Indefinite Delay

Too much enthusiasm for new roads in the state highway system seems liable to delay indefinitely completion of the trunk lines decided upon years ago, according to an analysis of the situation compiled from records of the state highway commission. Although California at present is out of funds to complete any new work on highways, there are now proponents in various sections for 3,000 additional miles of roads to be included in the state system.

There remain some 2,800 miles of the 6,500 miles of state roads that have not yet been touched with a view of improvement and completion. Even though funds were in hand several years' time would be required to do this work.

Need Big Sum

Yet at this time it is advocated from various sources that 3,000 miles be added to the roads included in the state system, and if this is done, it would make a total of 5,800 miles of uncompleted work, the average cost of which would run $35,000 a mile.

To complete the 2,800 miles in the present state system, the state engineering department has estimated will cost $214,000,000, not including the paving of new road. This would mean an added cost of $250,000,000, to include the additional 3,000 miles of new road. The new mileage asked for equals in distance all the mileage that was included in the state system when the State Highway commission was created in 1909.

McLean Motor Concern Continues Free Offer

R. A. McLean Motor Sales Co., 2028 Colorado boulevard, Eagle Rock, is continuing its offer of free gasoline with used cars for a time longer. With a used car selling for $400 or more 100 gallons of gas will be given free; with every car selling for less than $400, fifty gallons of gas free.

Several good buys are offered this week, Mr. McLean says, among them being a Ford sedan, Dodge touring, two Chevrolet touring, 1923 and 1924, and five good cars that are offered for $35 down and $15 per month.

Colds of the ancients were not treated with quinine, for the drug was not discovered until after the time of Columbus.

Auto License Renewals May Be Made on White Certificate, Now Ruling

Automobile license renewals for 1925 may be made on the white certificate by the registered owner, according to the latest ruling of Attorney General U. S. Webb, notice of which was received today by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Following this ruling by the Attorney General, W. H. Marsh, chief of the division of motor vehicles, Sacramento has decided that the registered owner of a motor vehicle may apply direct to the division of motor vehicles or through the Automobile Club of Southern California headquarters at 2601 South Figueroa street, Los Angeles, or any of its twenty-nine branch offices, on his white certificate of registration, which according to law, must be carried in the driving compartment of the motor vehicle.

By applying for licenses on the white certificate of registration, it is unnecessary for the applicant to pay a license service fee of 75 cents or more by dealing through the legal owner who may be a financial corporation, firm, bank or individual.

Individual applications for 1925 plates cannot be made until later, the exact date to be announced in the near future by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Individuals who are the legal as well as the registered owners of their cars, and there fore have in their possession the white as well as the pink certificate, can, upon presenting both certificates, together with $3, where the machine is gasoline-driven, pleasure vehicle, to the Motor Vehicle Department or the Automobile Club of Southern California—receive immediately 1925 license plates, the certificate to be mailed later by the motor vehicle department.

SPEEDING WINNER USED RICHFIELD

Ninth Consecutive Victory Won With Famous Gas And Oil Sunday

When Benny Hill finished first at the new Culver City Speedway 250 Mile Inaugural race last Sunday, he not only won one of the most thrilling speedway events ever witnessed—an event in which every world's record was shattered from ten miles up—but made the ninth consecutive A. A. A. national championship victory for the famous "Gasoline of Power" for 1924!

Not one of the spectators who witnessed this race in which the phenomenal new world's record of 126.9 miles per hour was established but will long remember its thrilling finish by the three leaders; specially the tremendous speed developed by Harry Hartz during the last 20 laps, one of which was a world's record in itself, establishing the fastest time ever made on any speedway in the world.

Both Harry Hartz and Tommy Milton, who finished so closely behind the winner, are exclusive users of Richfield gasoline and give full credit to the superior qualities of tremendous speed and power for which this famous California gasoline is noted.

Always Uses It

In thanking C. M. Fuller, president of the Richfield Oil Co., an enthusiastic witness, for his congratulations tendered immediately after the race, Benny said:

"I would no more think of entering a race without Richfield in my gasoline tank and Richlube in my crankcase than I would start with poor rubber or worn bearings.

"I have made a thorough test of gasolines and motor oils because racing is my business and to start without the finest gasoline and lubrication obtainable would be handicapping myself in a very foolish way. That is my opinion of Richfield gasoline and Richlube motor oil—the finest to be had."

TRAFFIC LAWS IN SWEDEN ARE TOLD

Enforce Street Regulations, Says Report to Auto Club Offices

Motorists in this section inclined to protest regulations governing automobiles may be thankful that laws here are not so strict as in some foreign countries. There is a vast difference in the regulations here and in Sweden, according to data reaching the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The motorist in Sweden is inspected four times a year and without warning. Cars may be stopped in the middle of the road and the inspector take the wheels off in order to test steering gear and brakes. Lights are also inspected. The supervision applies to condition and equipment of the car, its operation, personal responsibility of the driver and regularity in the conduct of business. In addition, there is a constant checking of speed, size of loads, wheel pressure, conformity to published schedules of trips, and the general order and neatness of cars. Every passenger must be provided with a ticket and even this is subject to inspection in order to avoid counterfeits.

'Hollywood Wop' Held Dope Peddler In N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The West Side magistrate court ordered a man describing himself as Joseph Pinto, 38, held in $5,000 bail after police who arrested him on charges of possessing narcotic drugs illegally, said they confiscated correspondence indicating he peddled dope in the Hollywood cinema colony and had sold dope to the late Wallace Reid, picture star ruined by the habit. Dr. Carleton Simon, police commissioner in charge of the narcotic division, said Pinto was known to the west coast as George Bruno or "The Hollywood Wop."

Building blocks that are being made of sawdust and lime are said to be fire, sound and waterproof.

APPLICATIONS FOR PLATES RECEIVED

Motor Vehicle Department Now Accepting Fees For 1925 Licenses

Applications and fees for 1925 license plates are now being accepted, announces Chief Will H. Marsh of the division of motor vehicles, Sacramento. The fee for a passenger car, trailer or motorcycle is $3, he states. Owners of trucks or other commercial motor vehicles will pay the same amount as last year, as indicated on the certificate of registration. A weight certificate is not necessary.

Applications should be sent directly to the division of motor vehicles, states Mr. Marsh, and should be accompanied by remittances by check, money order or bank draft. Currency or silver should not be sent.

Specific Instructions

Where the registered owner and legal owner are not the same, Mr. Marsh advises the applicant to send his fee and white certificate to the legal owner, and let the latter make application, forwarding both the white and the pink slips to Sacramento. In this connection, however, applicants are referred to a new ruling just issued by Attorney General V. S. Webb and published elsewhere in today's Evening News. When the application is approved, a new white slip will be issued to the registered owner, together with the 1925 plates, and the pink slip will be sent to the legal owner.

While the official renewal period does not begin until the latter part of January, Mr. Marsh urges applicants to get their fees in early, so that applications may be tabulated, and a last-minute rush be avoided. No certificates or plates will be mailed out until the commencement of the renewal period, he adds, and no applications will be accepted over the counter at this time, the object of the present request being to give the motoring public better service.

Taxi Rate War Seen In New Firm's Advent

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 18.—San Diego taxicab users were preparing today for a rate war following announcement that within a few days a new taxicab company, said to be backed by several Los Angeles capitalists, would invade the local field. The new company will be known as the Yellow Checker Co.

Highway Problem Of California Will Be Foremost Next Year

By GIL A. COWAN
Written for The Evening News.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—Officials of city, county and state; representatives of motoring associations; solons who are preparing for their biennial sojourn in Sacramento are expectantly awaiting the report to be rendered by the California Highway committee which held its last meeting prior to the legislative session in San Francisco.

Recommendations of an increased gasoline tax are being bitterly opposed by the refiners; the governor, who is in Los Angeles this week, is openly opposed to any "pork barrel" road program entailing additional revenue; and the Automobile Club of Southern California and civic representatives here have made the charge that the apportionment of funds militates against this section where most cars are used and more taxes are paid.

The highway problem will be preeminent in the coming sessions of the Legislature and unless a program compatible with the various interests is adopted there is every reason to believe that the state of California will suffer irreparably. It lies principally within the province of Southern California representatives to ameliorate the situation by conciliation, rather than forcing any one issue.

Mountain Highways

First of all, maintenance of the state highways is paramount. More of these exist north of the Tehachapi, because of the magnificent expanse of the state; also, due to the fact that southern counties built many miles of highways for themselves which have materially enhanced the prosperity and progress of the southland.

After maintenance, the most pressing need is the completion of interstate links, particularly those leading across the desert to the east. And a continued source of revenue for the completion of the all-coast highway from Siskiyou to San Diego must be had.

There is no doubt in the writer's mind but that the California Highway committee's report will ignore, or recommend against the building of parallel trunk lines at this time, although San Francisco is said to be making a strenuous campaign for another highway to San Jose.

Opposition Expected

It may be expected there will be opposition to any highway program ignoring these districts which appear important in the eyes of the immediate community, but it has been repeatedly pointed out that the welfare of the state at large is at stake in any action which will preclude the early paving of transcontinental routes.

Rebuilding the state highway from Montebello east to Whittier is considered the most essential piece of work in the local division of the State Highway commission. Traffic there demands it. Also, the building of a pavement from Mecca to Blythe in Riverside county is almost mandatory at this time, as is the desert highway from Barstow to Needles. That will take upwards to $5,000,000, it is roughly estimated.

From a motorist's standpoint the last mentioned road will make available a tolerable tour to the Grand Canyon of Arizona. It will provide a gateway to the east which will be attractive to the transcontinental traveler.

Difficulty Seen

The difficulty faced by the Legislature will not be one of providing means for necessary highway work. It is the ticklish job of asking "civic boosters" to subserve their desires to a program based on a broad view of state as a whole. Los Angeles' gas tax will have to help pay for roads in Riverside and Inyo and Imperial counties. San Francisco motorists' contributions will have to aid Siskiyou and other northern counties.

If Bay Cities' boosters insist on another highway to San Jose; if Los Angeles' delegation demands greater allotment of funds and the rural districts unite on some of their pet projects, Governor Richardson stands ready to nail the lid on such a pork barrel, he has let it be known.

Mount Tatio, a volcano in South America, is to be piped and the energy obtained will be used to make electricity.

Car Accidents Five Per Cent Less This Year

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 18. A decline of five per cent in automobile fatalities in California this year as compared with last, is predicted by L. E. Ross, chief of the state bureau of vital statistics, in an estimate today of the automobile death toll for the year based on the past ten months.

Deaths from automobile accidents for 1924, said Ross, will approximate 1,340, as, against 1,413 last year. A total of 1,115 persons lost their lives in automobile accidents during the first ten months of the year, Ross said.

CIZEK PREDICTS RADIO CHRISTMAS

Auto Electric Firm Says Number of Batteries Sold Surprising

"This will be a radio Christmas," said Henry H. Kuhn, of Cizek Auto Electric Co., Brand and Colorado boulevards, "and you would be surprised if I told you the number of batteries we sell every month for radios. People are just realizing that radio is past the experimental stage and provides more entertainment than any other form of amusement."

The Cizek Co. is distributor of the Willard battery and carries a complete line for every type of radio; also a line for all makes of automobiles. Mr. Kuhn claims that a wet battery is much more efficient than a dry one, gives better reception and is far more economical. Speaking of the results that can be gained by use of the wet battery, he said:

"We have a customer who has a large radio set which was equipped with dry batteries. He was unable to get anything farther than between 450 and 500 miles. I explained to him the advantages of a wet battery and he purchased a Willard. That night he tuned in for the first time, using his wet battery, and much to his surprise he got Edgewater Beach, Chicago. Another customer had about the same experience, except that he got Memphis, Tenn., when he tuned in with his Willard battery."

COACH REPLACING OPEN CAR MODELS

New Type Just Introduced by Oakland Factory Draws Motorists' Attention

The new coach for five passengers which was formally introduced to the public this week spells the doom of the open car, according to John Neuschafer, Glendale Oakland dealer.

"I look for the day when open cars are sold only to those people who insist on having a sporty looking raceabout", says Mr. Neuschafer. "The low priced superfine closed car offers so many advantages over the open car that I can see no other outcome in the motor car industry. The new coach which we are showing now incorporates all the splendid features of the finest closed car and sells at such a low price that everyone who can afford an open Oakland can also afford to buy a coach.

"The outstanding feature of this new creation is the complete quality construction employed. The body is the best of composite construction such as is used on cars costing several thousand dollars. It is of a hardwood over which is moulded the metal body. There is not one instance of makeshift construction in the body, and the chassis is the standard advanced Oakland six with all the improvements included.

Attracts Motorists

"Never in the history of the Oakland has any one model ever attracted so much attention from the public. Each day during the past week our showroom has been thronged with people who read of this new car and came in to look at it and see what could be bought in a quality car at so low a price. We failed to find anyone but who was surprised at the high value embodied in the car.

"The factory is under way with big production on this model and we expect to be able to make immediate deliveries for some time. However, this is never a certainty."

STOCK CAR MAKES NON-STOP RECORD

Studebaker Goes 900 Miles With Gears Sealed In High Last Week

Nosing out of a whipping storm of rain and heavy wind, a new Studebaker standard six duplex-phaeton stock car checked in at the main office of the Western Union in Los Angeles at 4:21 a. m. several days ago, stated Don H. Packer, of Packer Motor Co., Brand and Colorado boulevards, Glendale Studebaker dealers, having made a 900 mile non-stop run with its gears sealed in high from El Paso to Los Angeles.

The car was piloted by Edward R. Lester, El Paso distributor for Studebaker cars, and C. S. Payne, factory representative for Studebaker, of the same city. The men made the run in actual driving time of 24 hours and 21 minutes, beating the time of the Sunset Limited.

When the motor stopped in front of the Western Union office, it was the first rest it had got in its long grind. Slipping into the downtown business district through a drizzle, the car performed just as beautifully as the day it left the factory.

The last 100 miles were made through a bitter storm, the Studebaker bucking winds of 40 to 50 miles velocity, head on. In spite of the driving rain and winds, and the treacherous, slippery pavements, the pilots brought the car through in splendid time, beating their own estimated time limit when they started from El Paso.

Treacherous Route

The time made by Lester and Payne constitutes a record, for no other stock automobile ever has been asked to make a non-stop run over this route before as it covers some of the worst roads in the Southwest.

Checking in for official time records, Lester and Payne declared they had been compelled to make several long detours in the Imperial Valley because of road construction under way. The car negotiated the desert roads, mountain grades, curves and other disagreeable road features with perfect ease. It was necessary to add only one pint of water to the radiator.

The men had arrangements made ahead for fuel, and were given the assistance of dealers along the route in being piloted from point to point. Los Angeles newspapermen removed the seal from the gear, and will send it back to El Paso together with serial, motor and license plate numbers, for rechecking and identification by Harry S. Ducstan, automobile editor of the El Paso Herald and official representative there for A. A. A.

RESIST CITY ASSESSMENT ON ROAD

Property Owners Raise Funds To Fight Collection Of Tax Levied

More than 100 property owners of the southeast section attended the mass meeting in the Glendale intermediate school last night, when additional funds were raised for carrying on the fight against the Sycamore Canyon road assessment as proposed by the City Council.

R. Belcher, chairman of the committee in charge of raising the money, spoke before the gathering, reporting that already some funds had been gathered, but that the process was slow. He called upon those in the auditorium to come forward and subscribe. Many than half the audience responded.

President James C. Leitch of the Southeast Glendale Improvement association, Chairman Belcher, and other members of the committee, expressed their satisfaction at the amount raised last night and declared their confidence that enough money would be forthcoming to proceed with preliminary legal work preparatory to the filing of injunction proceedings.

Protest to Council

Property owners were urged to be present when the protest against the assessment was presented to the City Council today. The protest is signed by nearly 100 owners, and declares the assessment to be invalid and illegal, and requests its repeal.

Assurance has been given, Mr. Belcher told the audience, that an attorney will be available to proceed with the work at a moment's notice, should the council undertake to refuse the requests set forth in the protest.

In his talk, Mr. Belcher declared a property owner endeavored to pay his assessment at the City Hall yesterday, but that the amount was refused. Mr. Belcher interpreted this action on the part of the city to mean that a readjusted assessment was contemplated. He declared his belief that, in this event, the property owners in the southern extremity of the district and those west of Adams street would have their allotments either greatly reduced or eliminated.

Predicts Another

Mr. Belcher predicted that, if the city was successful in making the Sycamore Canyon road assessment stick, another large assessment was contemplated for the improvement of Verdugo wash.

"They have admitted that the wash improvement will cost $5,000,000, and they will bond the city as much as it will stand and then spread an assessment district for the remainder. If you are willing to pay your present assessment and greater ones to follow, just sit still and don't do anything," Mr. Belcher declared in conclusion, as he invited the audience forward to subscribe.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

In the passing of Asa Hall, Glendale councilman, whose death this week was a shock to the community, there is a lesson in life which should not be overlooked. He was an octogenarian, yet alert and vigorous to his very last moment among mortals. He was privileged to be an active worker for his adopted city, a pillar in the church and a business man of sound judgment and long experience.

Age sometimes is a burden. Not so for Mr. Hall. He appeared to be in very good health. He was meticulous about his personal appearance and habits. He radiated good humor in face of opposition and accepted the decision of others with rare good grace.

There are many men, no doubt, very much like Mr. Hall, who carry their years with the full ripened knowledge that as we live we learn. But there are many younger men who will hurry toward the end of the rainbow without realizing that theirs is an impossible goal and worry because progress is not as fast as it might be with them.

Oft times the younger man speaks hastily and without provocation. In Glendale we find new blood springing up to criticize that which has gone before. Some of the older residents cannot understand the youth of today, they are reserved toward the stranger in the ranks, and with good reason they consider the actions and thoughts of those who do not realize conditions quite so well as they to be nothing more or less than gross impertinence.

Some people take the wrong side of an issue to gain information. Accidentally, They may stumble onto something new by this method. And some "haven't any better sense", as you have heard it put.

Being a young man this writer sometimes appears obtuse, for which an apology is due. There are others who owe apologies. Also, in order to get information we may put the cart before the horse. For instance, Comment recently referred to lawyers elected to legislative office being in a position to easily betray their trust to the general public.

The fact that some have done so is no proof that a lawyer cannot and does not serve as willingly and as splendidly as any other citizen. Frank C. Weller, local assemblyman, is a lawyer. He will agree with me that a lawyer's private and public interests should not be mixed. All good lawyers hold to a high code of ethics.

Nevertheless, there are some not so good. They will make a good plea for either side of the case, depending which side the fee looks fattest. A law should be passed in California, as it has in other states, making expulsion from office automatic where it is found a legislative official, or any other officeholder for that matter, is accepting a fee for the subversion of public welfare. Instances could be cited where this has happened in California.

The writer is indebted to Attorney Charles L. Chandler for the foregoing suggestion. I explain this to show that Assemblyman Weller or any other lawyer legislator did not warp under criticism directed at "a state of affairs" rather than the individual.

Red Cross In Annual Election of Officers

Temple, Mrs. Harry James, Mrs. C. A. Brandstater and L. T. Rowley.

Other business taken up at the meeting, held at 323 North Brand boulevard with Mrs. White in the chair, was the reading of the annual reports of committees. Mrs. White gave a general report of the year's work, showing much activity had marked the last twelve months for the local Red Cross workers. The report of Miss Veysey, treasurer, showed that receipts for the year up until December 1, amounted to $1263, and that expenditures during that time were $1099. A balance remains in the treasury of $510, the treasurer reported.

Committee Reports

The report of the relief committee was made by Mrs. Huntley, chairman; Mrs. Brandstater reported as head of the canteen committee; Mrs. Dow reported on publicity work; Mrs. Peckham rendered her report for the parade committee; Mrs. Bartlett told of the work done by the purchasing committee and the community Chest committee; a report on publications was made by Mrs. Packer; Mrs. Dow also gave the clothing committee report; Mrs. Daugherty reported as chairman of the jam committee.

Plans for assisting in making Christmas happy for disabled soldiers and soldiers who are serving on foreign soil, were discussed. Fifty comfort bags have been made up and sent to general headquarters for distribution. The chapter subscribed to the fund of the American Legion auxiliary for Christmas work at Sawtelle. A large box full of jams and an amount of cash will go to the hospital at Camp Kearney, San Diego.

It was announced by Mrs. White that one of the main objectives during the coming year will be the establishment of a strong Junior Red Cross organization among the boys and girls of Glendale. Richardson D. White, superintendent of city schools, has been made temporary chairman in charge of this work.

YOUTHS PLAY WITH GUNS, ONE DEAD

Ralph S. Webster, 22, Dies At Hospital; Accidentally Shot With Pistol

A revolver, discharged in play, yesterday afternoon took the life of Ralph S. Webster, aged 22, of 1512 South Brand boulevard. The fatal shot was fired at 5 o'clock, by Donald Warner, aged 16, of 3047 Rosslyn street, Los Angeles, in the home of the latter, according to young Warner's own confession. At 5:26 o'clock Webster was pronounced dead at the Glendale hospital, where he had been rushed following the accident. The body has been removed to the Jewel City undertaking parlors, where it is being held pending a coroner's inquest.

The weapon that discharged the tragic bullet was a .32 calibre revolver, according to a statement filed by young Warner at Glendale police headquarters. Choking with sobs, he poured out the story. They were playing, he said, in an upstairs room in Warner's house.

"You're a dead man!" cried Webster in fun, leveling a weapon at Warner.

"Oh, no, I'm not!" laughed the younger boy, raising his revolver in turn.

Rushed to Hospital

Then, somehow—he will never understand just how—there came a flash and a roar. The room swirled with acrid smoke, and in the midst of it Warner saw his chum reeling.

His hand over his heart, blood streaming between his fingers and pouring from his mouth, Webster, staggered downstairs. Warner followed in a daze. The boys first tried to telephone the Glendale hospital, but, with the precious seconds passing, they gave it up and dashed into the street, where they hailed a delivery truck and were rushed to the hospital.

But Webster was beyond human aid. The bullet had entered between the seventh and eighth ribs, on the left side, in the region of the heart, and the youth died at 5:26 o'clock. Webster has been released in custody of his parents, pending the result of the coroner's inquest.

ROCKEFELLER POSTPONES JOURNEY

Oil Magnate Planned Trip To Florida Today, But Illness Denied

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 18.—A denial of the statement that John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was ill at his home in Pocantico Hills, was issued there today by his secretary.

"The cancellation of Mr. Rockefeller's reservation to travel by private car to Ormond Beach, Fla., this morning was due simply to a last minute change of plans," the secretary said. "As long as the weather remains mild as it is here Mr. Rockefeller will remain at Pocantico Hills."

Rockefeller played golf this morning, it was stated. It was intimated that the Rockefeller party might leave for Ormond Beach next week.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., was reported today to be ill at his estate at Pocantico Hills, although information to this effect was denied at the house.

Later a business representative of Rockefeller in New York City said that the multi-millionaire was suffering from a cold that was in no way alarming.

Rockefeller was up and about his house, this spokesman said, and planned to go to Florida either tomorrow or Saturday.

Trip Cancelled

The aged oil magnate was to have left today for his winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla., it being his yearly custom to spend the frigid months of the year in the south where he has been in the habit of playing golf regularly.

The Rockefeller party was scheduled to travel in a private car from Pennsylvania station at 9:15 o'clock this morning. Late yesterday, however, word was sent to the railroad officials cancelling the trip.

Rockefeller celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary last July. There has been no hint that he was not in his customary good health.

Football Rally for Big Game Cancelled

There will be no football rally tomorrow night on the Broadway High school grounds, in preparation for Saturday's tussle with Compton for the Southern California championship. This announcement comes from A. L. Ferguson, vice-principal. The change in plans is a result of the recent cold, damp weather, he states.

Capital Sees Friendly Era With Japanese

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18. A new era of friendly and cordial relations between the United States and Japan is expected to begin here with the arrival of the new Japanese ambassador, Tsuneo Matsuidaira, it was stated by a high official of the Coolidge administration today.

Taking cognizance of the various rumors and reports of bad feeling between the two countries, and particularly the speculation in the European press of a "war," an official spokesman for the administration said today that seldom have the present relations between Washington and Tokio been more placid.

Report Cold Wave to Continue In Southland

Chico was the next coldest spot with 18 degrees above zero.

No break in the cold wave is promised by the weather bureau. Continued cold was the prediction issued today as reports came in of freezing temperatures all over the state.

Below Zero Weather Reported In Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 18.—The bitterest cold spell the northwest has experienced during the past five years continued unabated today with the district weather office here holding out only the very slightest hope that a break might be expected within the next 36 hours.

Record low temperatures in Oregon, Washington and Idaho were characteristic of the cold which was accompanied in many places by a knife-like east wind.

Enterprise was the coldest place in Oregon, the mercury having dropped to 28 degrees below zero. Baker recorded ten below. Spokane registered four below, and Yakima 2 below. Boise, Idaho, reported six below.

Barometer Falling

Portland awoke today after the coldest night of the present spell. The mercury dropped to ten degrees and outlying residential districts reported temperatures of 7 and 8 above zero.

A falling barometer in Alaska and higher temperatures was the hope held out by the weather office for a letup in the cold snap of the northwest. It was believed the warmer wave would move slowly southward, reaching Oregon in about two days.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF GOMPERS

Capital Rubs Elbows With Labor as Services Are Held In New York

By WILLIAM PARKER
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Race, creed and color, together with capital and labor met on the common ground of mutual sympathy today, devout mourners at the funeral of Samuel Gompers, late president of the American Federation of Labor.

At 20 minutes past 9 o'clock the funeral service was begun, with the lodge room of the Elks' clubhouse filled to its utmost capacity, with 2,000 persons crowded in the town hall across the way, listening to the service through a loud speaker, and with hundreds of others packed in front of the big grey, crepe-hung; building in Forty-third street.

Crowds Pack Street

Long before the scheduled hour for the services Forty-third street, where the Elks' clubhouse stands, was thronged from aristocratic Fifth Avenue to bustling Broadway. Hundreds came hours early, eager to hear Rabbi Stephen S. Wise conduct the service and listen to the oral tribute by James Duncan, veteran first vice-president of the American Federation of Labor.

Not one more person could have been accommodated in the big lodge room for the 1,000 present were crowded elbow to elbow. Seated in specially reserved chairs at one side were the widow, the sons and the relatives of Gompers. Flanking these were officers high in the ranks of labor. In other seats were the active and honorary pall-bearers and honored invited guests, among them Governor Smith, Admiral Plunkett of the Brooklyn navy yard, and Bernard Baruch, the New York financier.

Whole Nation Mourns

Though the services were confined to New York City and Tarrytown, the observance was nation-wide, for union work shops throughout the country ordered work suspended for two minutes from 11 o'clock. In New York municipal flags were flung at half-mast. In West Chester county, through which the funeral cortege made its way to romantic Sleepy Hollow, no work was done while the procession passed.

In the city, school teachers had been instructed by the New York board of education to speak to the pupils during the morning session of the life and services of Samuel Gompers. The teachers told how this once penniless and scarcely tutored boy of London's lowly White chapel district had come to America an immigrant and rose to an exalted position as a leader of men. Stress was laid by the teachers on the last words which Gompers uttered when he died at San Antonio, "God bless our American institutions."

Buried at Tarrytown

Under a leaden sky and with intermittent rain, Gompers was buried in Sleepy Hollow cemetery at Tarrytown this afternoon. Interment was in an elaborate sarcophagus donated by the Baltimore Federation of Labor.

Services at the cemetery were very simple and under the auspices of the Saint Cecile lodge of Masons.

Residents of towns along the line of funeral procession stood with bared heads as the cortege passed. At Yonkers 200 automobiles with union labor men and bearing banners reading "We mourn our loss" joined the procession.

He said in that year the damage in Los Angeles from flood waters was ten million dollars. He declared that he worked three years on the plans for the thirty-five million dollar bond budget before submitting it to the voters. Mr. Reagan predicted ample rainfall during the present winter.

Officials Present

One hundred and fifty members of the Greater Glendale Luncheon club and the Glendale Advancement association attended the formal opening of the new Union Pacific station. Dinner was served promptly at 12:15 o'clock. Guests of honor were F. H. Knickerbocker, general manager of the U. P. who spoke briefly on Glendale and the growth it has experienced and prophesied a continued climb in population, business and industry; Mayor Spencer Robinson, members of the City Council, City Manager Virgil B. Stone, directors of the Chamber of Commerce and half a dozen other officials of the railroad, including J. L. Trotten, T. C. Peck, E. F. Deigert, L. M. Brown, J. A. Cruickshank, E. A. Coon, E. W. Gilliland and C. A. Redmond.

Extends Welcome

President D. H. Smith of the chamber welcomed the Union Pacific officials to Glendale after they had been introduced by Chairman George F. Orgibet who presided at the luncheon. The railroad men were presented with a large basket of poinsettias, the gift of R. E. Johnston, Glendale manufacturer whose concern furnished the material from which the new station was built.

J. Arthur Myers led in community singing during the luncheon with Mike Kauffman at the piano. It was announced that there will be no meeting of the Greater Glendale luncheon club next Thursday, Christmas eve. The next meeting will be December 11, the day before New Year's.

TEXAS TOWN IN THROES OF BOOM

Sleepy Hollow Thanksgiving Day, Now Scene of Record Oil Flow

By ROBERT T. SMALL
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News. Copyright. 1924

WORTHAM, Texas, Dec. 18.—This little mid-Texas town with its rambling "sky-line" of one story buildings was a sort of Sleepy Hollow just about two weeks ago.

Today it is in the throes of an oil boom which promises to break many modern records—a new Eldorado. The population grew overnight from a few hundred to ten thousand and more and still they come. Where but a single derrick raised its peaked head above a black hole and a single hopeful crew worked by day and by night a fortnight ago, today stand more than 200 derricks—a veritable forest of them, and of about half that number the rigs are running and the big steel drills are pounding down to the sands more than half a mile deep which in the end will spell fortunes to the favored few and disaster perhaps to the many—the other rigs will swing into action as soon as the tools are placed and the fuel and water for the drilling engines can be rushed in.

Turkey Day Gift

The excitement all dates back to Thanksgiving Day, which seems almost like ancient history now to Wortham. That day the first big gusher was shot. The crew felt the day would bring good luck. There were some tense moments after the big charge of dynamite at the bottom of the hole had been touched off but the wait was not for long. With a roar the black oil came rushing out of the eight inch pipe in a stream that appeared as thick as a man's body. A high pressure pool had been tapped. The rush was on.

The Thanksgiving well has been running 12,000 barrels a day at $1.25 a barrel. On Thursday last a second and still greater gusher was shot. It is running 15,000 barrels choked down and might make over 20,000 with open valves. It is small wonder, then, that a hundred crews are fighting feverishly to reach the main pool or a sister pool while the big pressure lasts and while the black gold comes pouring out in fortune's flood.

Boom Lacks Color

Yet the oil boom of today no longer is a highly colored thing comparable to the gold rushes of the early times. Conduction of an oil boom has become a sort of set science. It is a highly organized affair in which the biggest of the so-called "Trusts" fight tooth and nail with "wild catter" and independent for the fruits of the fields. There no longer is any grabbing of land but wild bidding and over bidding for leases and drilling rights. The landholders grant these rights to the companies that promise the greatest number of wells and the highest royalties per barrel of oil produced. The present rush has not only engulfed the town of Wortham but a good part of the surrounding country.

It is not a haphazard rush, however. The geologists already have fixed the probable profitable bounds of the field. Great camps have sprung up with the orderliness of a big circus or an army on the march. Big oil companies like the Gulf, the Humble, and the Pure—an odd combination by the way—are behind these camps. The Commercial hotel—two story pride of Wortham—has been turned over to a professional oil boom caterer who is feeding 450 people an hour by the simple device of putting plenty of good solid food on one big table and telling everybody to help themselves. Like the crews at the drills the crews at this kitchen work in day and night shifts.

Morals of Time

The new morals of our time, or in any event the new morals laws of the day, have laid their restraining hands upon the oil camps, extinguishing the lights that once burned crimson and wiping out the bar room shacks where the fellow who had raised a thirst could find his fill of slackening surcease. Of course there still is bootlegging in both of the old professions but organized vice has given way to organized effort for commercial gain. Big jails hurriedly thrown up in some of the Texas towns in anticipation of heavy tenantage are all but empty and may yet be turned into barracks for the thrifty workers rather than the moral shirkers.

This Wortham strike came at a time when the big companies had hoped the first drillings would prove a failure because oil production already was running ahead of the demand. But today they are all here in the scramble and as President O'Donnell of the Petroleum Institute stated at Fort Worth in his opening address they are all "organized to the last degree to acquire territory, with geological and land departments and doodlebugs and everything they can think of to locate new supplies."

NEW YORK CLOSING

By W. S. COUSINS
For International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Railroad stocks were reinforced by the stocks of prominent mercantile and mail order houses in their drive for higher prices today. Prices jumped 3 to 5 points shortly after the opening, then relapsed into a period of inactivity and finally declined from the peaks on heavy profit taking.

The waves of profit taking which swept over the market were absorbed with only moderate setback.

In every division of the rail list prices moved forward. Among the low priced shares, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Western Maryland and New Haven attracted special attention. Large blocks of New Haven were taken at rising prices on reports that this road, which has been showing huge deficits in recent years will close 1924 with a surplus of $3,000,000 equivalent to $2 a share.

Sharp advances in Sears-Roebuck, Woolworth, Kresge and stocks of companies related to the retail industry, including American Can and Continental Can featured the industrial list, U. S. Steel took the premier position in the metal stocks, settled up to 119 on a heavy turnover. A rise of nine points in the close-held Iron Products common to 100 helped along the current advance in the common and preferred stocks of the Universal Pipe & Radiator Co. At 76½, the latter stock was up 3 points to a new high for the year. The stock has risen 30 points since the first part of November.

Standard Oil stocks were in good form, both on the curb and in the listed market. Standard Oil of New Jersey sold up 1½ points at the head of a movement in the oil shares in which Pan-American and a few of the other independent oils followed. Equipment coppers, independent steels and motor stocks were generally inactive with narrow changes in prices.

Stock sales: 2,028,700 shares; bonds $17,268,000.

ROTARIANS HEAR BETTER BUSINESS

Ed Nisle Leads Discussion at Club Luncheon Today On Good Methods

Business methods were discussed by Ed Nistle, clothier, at today's luncheon of the Glendale Rotary club. He lauded the merchant with ideals befitting membership in a service club. He gave suggestions highly appreciated.

Untruthful advertising on the part of the merchants was decried, particularly regarding prices and guarantees. A round table was conducted with several telling of their personal experience.

Wholesalers misrepresenting market conditions also came in for criticism by Mr. Nisle. Taking discounts after the time limit is passed, should be discountenanced, he told the merchants.

Mr. Nisle said that offers of bargains were not half as convincing as absolutely reliability in one's statements. He urged members to critically examine their business methods.

Names Committee

President J. Herbert Smith named J. I. Wernette and Val Hollister as members of the civic committee on city assessments, at the request of the City Council. The president also announced the charter dinner meeting of the Torrance Rotary club at the California Yacht club tonight.

R. Ernest Tucker led in the singing of Christmas songs. Ed Nisle presented fellow members with leather correspondence packets. Rotarians were reminded of their little crippled friends by John T. Cate.

Visiting Rotarians included L. R. Tanner, Brainerd, Minn.; J. Will Johnson, Pueblo, Colo.; Ben Bernard, Mitchell, S. D.; Andy Fillback, Burbank, Calif.; E. C. Henderson, Bill Bowman, Charles L. Esty, Otto G. Wildey, Los Angeles, Fay Moore, Pasadena and Bert Cross, Burbank.

William A. Howe, manager of the Glendale Theatre, invited Rotarians to attend his show a week from Friday night and asked members to round up youngsters for a Christmas matinee program.

COUNCIL HOLDS UP CANYON PROTESTS

Day After Xmas Set for Hearing; Asa Hall Remembered

The council chamber was crowded this morning with protestants against the assessment for improvement of Sycamore Canyon road.

Mayor Spencer Robinson, presiding over the meeting of the City Council, requested everyone in the room to rise while A. J. Van Wie, city clerk, read in the minutes of the special meeting of December 15, the resolution of condolence adopted in memory of Councilman Asa Hall, who died last Saturday.

In the chair vacated by the deceased councilman rested a beautiful floral wreath ordered by the council. On his desk lay a copy of the official calendar of matters before the council today.

Hearing Put Over

The Sycamore Canyon hearing was the first order of business, and was opened with a reading, by the city clerk, of written protests filed with him. Oral protests were then heard. Mr. Belcher requested a continuance of the hearing until January 4, but the council, deeming this too long a period to hold the matter in abeyance, voted to set the next hearing for December 26. The street superintendent was ordered to make certain minor changes in the assessment roll.

The council continued until December 26 the hearing on the assessment for improvement of Tyler street. December 26 was the date set for the hearing on issuance of bonds for the improvement of El Rita avenue and other streets in that district.

Protests Denied

All protests were denied at the hearing on issuance of bonds for the improvement of Viola avenue and Stocker street, and a resolution was adopted ordering the bonds to be issued.

Bids for construction of a fence around Patterson avenue park were opened and read by the city clerk, and were referred to the city engineer and city manager for checking and report. HOGS EAT AND GROW THIN ON CORN

Record Shipment of Pigs To Market Results In Strange Turn

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—"Eat and grow thin" has become the motto of the American hog, according to farmers of the country and many of the raisers are getting rid of their animals as fast as possible in consequence. All previous records for receipts of hogs at Chicago were broken this month, 382,000 being marketed in the week of December 6 and 122,000 being disposed of in one day.

The determination to get rid of their hogs which would be held and fattened under normal circumstances has been brought about by the high price of corn. The supply of old corn is beginning to run out while much of the new crop is soft, of inferior quality and of little value in fattening. While quality and weight of animals now coming to the packer's pens are better than a month ago, they are still under normal.

These heavy stocks are being thrown on the market with replacements not in sight. The number of sows kept for breeding purposes last year was 20 per cent under the ten year average. Owing to cold weather last spring a smaller number of pigs from each litter reached maturity. Farrowings this fall were 10 to 15 per cent under those of last year. These conditions point strongly toward higher prices for the meat products for every American breakfast table and dinner pail. In commenting on this situation today Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co., packers, said:

Packer's Comment

"Although corn and hog production combined have brought fairly good returns to producers this year, the relation between corn and hog prices has for some time been unfavorable for the raising of hogs. As a result of this and the small 1924 corn crop, indications for 1925 point rather definitely to a considerable decrease in the marketing of hogs.

"More or less liquidation has been going on in the range cattle country and it is generally thought that reduced marketings of cattle are in prospect. The short yield and poor quality of the corn crop have already cut down the quality and finish of hogs and cattle coming to market and there is a general feeling that there will be higher prices for hogs and cattle, especially for well finished animals.

"Nineteen twenty four has been a fairly good year in the meat packing industry. During most of the year basic conditions were satisfactory for good financial returns. Production of cattle and hogs was above pre-war levels. Hog marketings will just above equal the record run of 1923 which were 18 per cent above those of the previous record year of 1918. Heavy marketing of calves continued throughout the year and are an indication of liquidation in the cattle business.

"The demand for meat products has been satisfactory during most of the year. The domestic market has absorbed large meat supplies at fairly good prices. Total exports for the year will probably be about 10 per cent less than last year.

"Hog prices during the year were about 7 per cent higher than for 1923. Lamb prices average 5 per cent above those for the previous year and cattle prices were about the same level as in the previous period. With the exception of lambs, live stock prices are not yet in line with the prices of all commodities. Improvement has taken place the past year in this respect, but indications point to still further advances in live stock prices.

"It is true that hog prices have been considerably out of line with the general level of prices during the past year but the total income from the sale of hogs has been greatly in excess of pre-war years on account of the increase in numbers marketed. This increase has been due largely to the production of three enormous corn crops prior to this year, which could not have been marketed so profitably in any other way as through an increase in the number of hogs. Total returns from the sale of corn and hogs in 1924 will be about 50 per cent higher than they were in 1913. In general, the outlook for 1925 both in live stock production and in the packing industry, is generally conceded to be favorable."

GLENDALE AVENUE WIDENING OKAYED

Boulevard Body Endorses Plan to Keep Step With L. A. Work

Widening of Glendale avenue in Los Angeles as far as First street was advocated at a meeting of the Greater Glendale boulevard association at Echo Park clubhouse last night. The meeting was for the purpose of completing organization of the association. Councilman Gregory of Los Angeles addressed the gathering, pledging his support to the proposed widening of the street to a uniform 100 feet.

S. Berman and E. G. Thomas, members of the South Glendale Business Men's association, attended the meeting. Mr. Thomas expressed appreciation for himself and his organization in the work being done by the Greater Glendale boulevard association.

In commenting on the action taken favoring a wider boulevard from the Glendlae bridge as far as First street, President L. G. Scovern of the business men's association, said:

"The time has arrived when it is necessary for us to remove the barriers from our door, so that the improvements made in Los Angeles may be of benefit to us here in Glendale. We heartily endorse the movement for widening Glendale avenue."

Rubber paving has proved a failure in parts of London and is being replaced by wood blocks.

LEGION NOTES

Every wounded California World war veteran in the hospitals throughout the United States will receive a Christmas box from the women of the American Legion Auxiliary of California, according to Mrs. Elizabeth I. Drendell, secretary-treasurer of the organization. Disabled nurses will also be remembered by the women and Christmas packages are to be presented to each of them by the auxiliary.

The wounded and disabled men in each of the California hospitals are to be given Christmas boxes by the women, Mrs. Drendell said, in addition to the packages being sent to all California veterans receiving treatment at the hands of the government in hospitals out of the state.

Drafting over 500 American Legion members throughout the state to assist him, Nathan F. Coombs of Napa, state commander, has announced that he is ready to carry on the organization's program of Boy Scout work, rehabilitation, veterans' welfare, forest and water conservation and Americanism during 1925.

On December 20 and 21 the legion's plans for the San Joaquin valley will be discussed at Turlock by Coombs and Fisk.

An inspection tour of the All-American canal project in the Imperial valley is on the program for December 26 when El Centro is to be visited. San Diego is on the schedule for December 30 when the veterans' hospital at Camp Kearney will be visited.

A meeting of the executive committee of the legion will be held at Pasadena on December 31. National Commander James A. Drain will be present. Coombs and Fisk will return to the state headquarters in this city about January 3rd.

National Commander James A. Drain of the American Legion is to visit San Francisco and other Northern California cities early next spring, State Commander Coombs announces.

Commander Drain is to attend the Pasadena Tournament of Roses January 1, but will be forced to return directly to Indianapolis after the celebration in the south. His visit to Northern California at the present time has been cancelled and a schedule is being worked out for the national commander's trip there in the spring.

Arkansas Rice Crop Is Valued at $9,000,000

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 18.—The Arkansas rice crop for the past season totaled 6,200,000 bushels and was valued at upward of $9,000,000.

FORTUNES ARE MADE FROM REALTY

Suburban Properties Gain Attention as Harvest Waits Reaping

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Fortunes have been made in real estate in the past year in both city and suburban property and farsighted individuals are preparing to reap future harvests of dollars by acquisition of large tracts hitherto considered of only nominal value, well away from present trade and industrial centers. Some of the holdings of New York real estate owned by families long identified with Manhattan property, among them the estate of the late Baron Astor, have been sold at record prices in late months. The Baron Astor estate is reported to be disposing of city property as rapidly as possible.

So valuable has property become in Manhattan that many industrial concerns have been forced to move to Long Island, New Jersey or Connecticut. This has stimulated property values in those sections. Opening of new residential subdivisions has added millions to the bank accounts of Philadelphia operators. Similar trends are being reported constantly from other sections.

"Confidential figures from our members," said V. P. Brun of the San Francisco real estate board, "show that a total profit of $347,000 was made in San Francisco during the past 3 years on an aggregate investment of $103,500 in eleven parcels of business property picked at random from sectional business districts of the city. Some of the investments producing this huge profit were as low as $5,000 and some as high as $75,000. The profits in individual parcels of land ranged up to 136 per cent." Prices per front foot in San Francisco have tripled in some districts.

Long Island Property

Property along Long Island Sound within commuting distance of New York, held for years at nominal figures, now is selling rapidly at $45,000 an acre. Many of the most successful dealers in real estate in the Metropolitan suburban section are women.

New Jersey has more undeveloped land which is not mountainous than any other eastern state and large holdings are being acquired there by wealthy investors able to wait for property values to increase. Among these are Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, the estate of the late Joseph Wharton of Philadelphia, represented by J. B. Lippincott, publisher, and the Bethlehem Steel company. Most of the holdings of these owners are sandy land covered with a growth of scrub oak, pine and white birch of little value for lumber purposes.

The Mellon holdings recently acquired, are in what is known as the White Horse belt near the main highway from Philadelphia to Atlantic City. The secretary is quoted as saying he will not sell until a profit of $100 an acre is obtained. One tract recently was sold for $30,000 and real estate men are reported to have offered double that figure for similar plots.

Joseph Wharton, who made millions in iron and steel, secured his Jersey land holdings at 25 cents an acre. The Bethlehem Steel company acquired a tremendous acreage during the war to use as a proving ground for big guns. The company paid all sorts of prices in order to secure the acreage intact.

One man who owned 150 acres near the center of the tract declined to sell because he was interested in certain phases of horticulture and had never found soil so favorable for his purpose elsewhere. The company after long search found land equally advantageous for the horticulturist purpose in New York state, bought it as a high price and induced the man to exchange.

The steel company has ceased to require the property as a proving ground but undoubtedly found a heavy profit from the land.

Henry Ford recently sold an important Detroit business property for $3,500,000 but has advanced his holdings in Detroit suburbs to about 7,000 acres. His real estate holdings now are valued at well above $50,000,000.

We Invite You to Become Better Informed on Radium at Our Expense

Do you agree with Edison that Radium is the outstanding discovery of this age, the greatest of all ages?

If so, should not people be better informed on the subject?

Most people would like to, but do not care to waste time with long, heavy technical treatises that unfold secrets of this fascinating element of the infinite.

Here is a way to be better informed on Radium at our expense.

Our free book "The Newest Miracle of Modern Science" was prepared at great expense by practical experts for the purpose of giving a good knowledge at one reading. In a most interesting vein, it unfolds some of the mysteries of Radium.

It is bound in imitation leather.—"A valuable addition to any library," writes one appreciative booklover.

The newest use of Radium and the greatest, Science says, is that either Radium or Radium Ore has the power to revitalize or revigorate drinking water by restoring an element called Natural Niton or radio-activity. This wonderful health element itself is not new. Indeed, it has been recognized for some time as largely responsible for the cures effected by some of the most famous health springs of the world, like Hot Springs, Arkansas.

Science finds that the normal supply of this element is bestowed by Nature to our drinking water but that unfortunately it escapes from reservoirs, water pipes and bottles before we get it. The Radium Ore REVIGATOR is made of Radium Ore and like radium its energy never dies. Day by day, and year by year, it replaces this energy to our drinking water through the marvelous electrification or ionization power of the radium rays.

Tested by the Government, endorsed by health authorities, and praised by enthusiastic users, are indications that this vital discovery has a definite place in your home.

CHAPTER LXVIII

"I was afraid you'd send me back. I knew there was one one chance—to stay on board long enough. I hid all day, terrified lest some one should look in the stateroom. At night I felt so ill that I almost gave up, but somehow or other I dropped off to sleep. When I awoke I felt faint and found myself crying. I went to sleep again, though. This morning, as soon as I heard your voice on deck, I crept up the stairs and here I am. I am here, Grant. You are not going to be cruel?"

He rang the bell.

"Some coffee, an omelette, quickly," he ordered from the astonished steward. "Serve it here. Let me have the coffee at once."

"Don't keep me alive unless you are going to be kind to me," she begged hysterically. "I couldn't bear it, Grant. Tell me you are not going to land me anywhere. Why are you looking at me like that?"

"I was thinking," he answered.

"Grant, you cared for me once," she went on. "I know I must look perfectly hateful now, but I'm not hateful. I'm really rather wonderful. I could be. Otto was killing me, and all the horrible things he made me do. Grant, say something to me. Feel my hands, how cold they are. Be kind to me."

"My dear, who could be anything but kind to you?" he exclaimed. "But you must realize—you must know—this is a terrible thing you have done."

He took her hands and held them in his for a minute. The steward brought in the coffee. The boy followed behind, a moment or two later, with an omelette and cold meats. Grant felt suddenly stifled. He turned towards the door.

"I'm going to leave you for a short time," he announced. "You must drink your coffee and you must eat something. I'm going to try and find out where your things are. I will have them put in a room for you and a bath got ready. We can't talk until you are yourself again."

She looked at him wistfully.

"I'll do just as you tell me, Grant," she promised.

"Then first of all drink your coffee while it is hot," he insisted.

He made his way on deck. For a moment he could scarcely realize that this was the same cruise, the same ship, the same deck he had walked a few moments ago. He tried to face the matter calmly. She had been on board since the night after Blunn's party, the remainder of that early morning, and all the next night. By this time every one in Monte Carlo probably knew — probably she knew. No one could ever be told the truth. There was no explanation, no defense. She was there alone on the yacht with him. Before they could land anywhere, two nights would have passed. A sudden storm of anger seized him! Then he remembered her, as she had almost crouched in her chair, her gorgeous clothes bedraggled, her eyes searching his like the haunted eyes of a dumb animal in fear. What way was there out of it? He had faced problems before, difficult problems. How could he deal with this one?

Presently he returned to his quarters and sent for his own servant.

"Brookes," he asked, "did you know anything about a lady being on board?"

"Nothing, sir, until a few minutes ago when I saw her coming up the companionway," the man assured him.

"Have you heard anyone else allude to it in any way?"

"No one, sir."

"It appears that she sent a trunk here, or a package addressed to me, containing clothes," Grant continued after a moment's pause. "Kindly search for it and have it taken to the Empire suite aft. Prepare a bath there and everything that is necessary. Find the lady and let her know. She will lunch with me in the saloon."

"Very good, sir," the man replied.

And after that! He busied himself for an hour or so in the minor affairs of the ship. The captain found him studying the chart.

"When should we make Gibraltar, Martin?" he enquired.

"Sunday morning, sir, as early as you like. I'll guarantee the coal, though."

Grant nodded.

"I may decide to put in," he said. "I'll let you know."

Gibraltar! A hopeless place. How could he possibly leave her there amongst strangers? And yet, if not, it must be Madeira, worse still, or New York. Eight days alone with the woman with whom he had once been in love—the memory of whose kisses had never altogether passed. It all seemed very hopeless. His own marked attentions to Gertrude during the last week or so—attentions persisted in partly to lull her suspicions and partly to keep her away from Arthur Lymane—came back to his mind. There was probably not a soul in the world who would hold him blameless for what happened. A diabolical trick of fate!

He came down the deck a few minutes before lunch time and found Gertrude established in a long chair—a very changed and resuscitated Gertrude. She was wearing a white serge costume; her hair—she wore no hat—shone in the warm light with the color of cowslips in a sun-soaked meadow. She was herself again, soignee, as perfect in the small details of her toilette as though her maid had spent the morning by her side. Brookes appeared with two cocktails on a tray, just as Grant arrived. She took one readily and smiled at her distracted host.

"This is wonderful," she murmured. "I never wanted anything so much in my life. The epoch to which my reputation belongs is finished," she went on, a moment later. "You can put me off somewhere if you want to and make me appear ridiculous. I do not think that you will be so cruel as that, though."

"No," he admitted. "I do not think I shall. But, in the name of God, what made you do it?"

"I have tried to explain," she answered. "Perhaps presently I may be coherent. Am I allowed to lunch with you?"

"By all means. The bugle has just gone. Let me help you out."

Her fingers clung to his, and she took his arm as they passed down the companionway and entered the beautiful little saloon. She looked round her almost affectionately.

"I didn't think I should be here again so soon," she murmured.

"Neither did I," he answered.

"I missed most of the fun the other night," she went on ruminatingly. "If I had known what was going to happen, I shouldn't have been so careful. Your little friend, Lady Susan, really won the trick, didn't she?"

"She did," Grant assented. "She brought that youthful navigator of mine to his senses. I think if it hadn't been for her, your husband and Blunn would have got Funderstrom back and that invitation to America would never have been sent."

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BLACKBOARD

"Where are you going now, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning, as she saw the rabbit gentleman hopping out of the kitchen window.

"I am going to look for an adventure," he answered.

"Well that's a queer way to go—jumping out of the window," said Nurse Jane. "What will the neighbors say?"

"Why they will say—"There goes Uncle Wiggily jumping out of the window'—that's what they'll say," answered the bunny.

"Well, but what will they think?" went on Nurse Jane. "You are such a tease, Wiggy! What wil lthe neighbors think"

"They will think I am tired going out of the door, and that I am hopping out of the window for a change, which is perfectly right!" laughed the rabbit, Twinkling his pink nose at Nurse Jane. And having done this, away he hopped, over the fields and through the woods.

He had not gone very far before he reached the hollow stump school. It was rather late in the day, and the bunny uncle did not imagine any of the animal boys or girls would be at class. But, all of a sudden, he heard some exclaim:

"I'll catch you! I'll catch you!"

"Oh, ho! That must be the Fox or Wolf going to catch me," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I'd better run. I don't want that kind of an adventure!"

The bunny was about to hop away when the door of the hollow stump school opened and out came the Lady Mouse teacher. In her paws she held two erasers, and as she clapped them together a cloud of chalk dust flew out. The Lady Mouse sneezed:

"Ah ker chooe! Ah ker choo!"

"Oh, was that you sneezing before?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I thought it was some bad chap saying: 'I'll catch you! I'll catch you'!"

"It was I who sneezed," laughed the Lady Mouse. "It always makes me sneeze to clean off the chalky blackboards."

"Why don't you tell one of the boy animals to stay in and clean them?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Well, none of the boy pupils were bad today, and I couldn't keep any of them in," laughed the Lady Mouse. "So I'll clean the blackboards off myself, even if I do sneeze."

"No, I'll do it for you," kindly and politely offered Uncle Wiggily, and with that he took the erasers from the teacher mouse, and hopping into the hollow stump school he began to clean the blackboards of chalk marks the pupils had put there for their lessons.

Now the Fuzzy Fox happened to see Uncle Wiggily go in the school, and the bad chap said to himself:

"Now it will be easy to get that rabbit. I'll creep up to the hollow stump, jump in and nibble his ears. At last I shall catch him!"

But just as the Fox was going in the school, Uncle Wiggily felt a lot of tickling chalk dust up his nose, and he sneezed very hard:

Ah ker choo! Ah ker choo! Ah ker choo!" like the Lady Mouse he sneezed.

But to the Fox, outside, it sounded as though some one shouted: "I'll catch you! I'll catch you! I'll catch you!"

"Goodness!" thought the Fox. "Uncle Wiggily must have a Police Dog in there to catch me! But he isn't going to! I'll run away."

And away ran the Fox, his bushy tail between his legs, while with the chalk dust up his nose Uncle Wiggily again sneezed:

"Ker choo! Ker choo! Ah ker choo!"

And it wasn't until a long while afterward that the Fox learned the molasses jug doesn't sit down how he had been fooled. So if in the rocking chair and stick fast, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily in the barber shop.

RECORDS OF TWO TEAMS OUTLINED

Gladiators Have Slight Edge Over Dynamiters, Based On 1924 Average

When Glendale and Compton take the field Saturday afternoon to play for the championship of Southern California and the prep grid title, the two teams will be fairly evenly matched, with the Bay leaguers having a slight edge, if anything.

The percentage column for the Bay leaguers, computing their record on total games won, lost and tied for the entire season, shows .800. The Dynamiters' percentage for the entire season is a very small fraction under .770. The Dynamiters played thirteen games during the 1924 season, while the Gladiators indulged in ten games.

The percentage is figured under the method adopted by the California Interscholastic federation. Under this ruling, tie games count as one-half a game won and one-half a game lost. Thus, Glendale, with nine games won, two lost and two tied, gets a rating of ten games won and three lost. Compton has seven games won, one lost and two tied, or a C. I. F. rating of eight games won and two lost.

Records for Season

From the season records printed below, it will be noted that Compton and Venice played a scoreless tie in a Bay league game. This game later was forfeited to Compton when it was learned that Venice used ineligible players in their lineup.

When the Bay league season was over, Compton and San Pedro were tied for first place in the standing. The championship of the league was given to Compton, however, because the Gladiators had won a decisive victory over the Harbor lads earlier in the season. The season records of the two teams follow:

Leader Refuses To Quit

BAN JOHNSON, president of the American league and one of the men responsible for the formation and growth of that loop, will not resign, his friends report, following the attempt of a resolution offered at the joint meeting of major leagues.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Alone and forsaken though he may be, reports that Ban Johnson will resign as president of the American league as a result of yesterday's developments, were heatedly denied by friends of the gentleman in question. They were unanimous in stating that Johnson would stick, in spite of the resolution offered by the joint meeting of the major leagues whereby Johnson was shorn of his last vestige of power and the assurance given Judge Landis that Ban would be "removed from baseball," the first time he talked out of the corner of his mouth.

Johnson was inaccessible today except to his immediate and personal friends. To these, however, he gave every indication that a resignation at this time was farthest from his thoughts. That he might step down later was not denied, even by the strongest pro-Johnson man, of which there are still a few.

A committee composed of Connie Mack, Tom Shibe and Clark Griffith, will wait upon Johnson this morning with a message, the purport of which has not been divulged. It is said that they will ask Johnson not to resign. This, Johnson's friends have made it if true, is quite without necessity. clear that he will not resign at this time because he feels that his dignity will not be added to by quitting under fire.

Later, they intimated, when he is firmly established and the present incident forgotten, Johnson may offer to step down for a financial consideration running into a young fortune. Johnson's contract at an annual salary of $30,000 still has six years to run.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

Now that they're all through picking all-American grid elevens, experts might start in picking all-American gunmen. It is suggested that no selections be made until expert looks over L. A. field. After gunmen are disposed of they might pick an all-American movie production team. Try and do it in America. About as much chance as there is of picking an all-American League of Nations. All America can do is suffer through five, six, seven and sometimes more, reels of alleged drama with make-believe actors. That proves limit of penalty for not knowing technique of fillum making.

Technique of fillum making is very technical. If you don't believe it ask any one of the expants makers and pawnshop keepers now in the business.

First of all they will tell that the "dear public" governs their every action. If "dear public" flocks to theater to see how long Valentino's new whiskers have grown over night, producers stop all work by $1,000 week directors and start shooting various lengths of whiskers building plot around 'em as they grow.

If the public wants whiskers that's what public is going to get, producers reason.

Valentino's whiskers are parted half-dozen different ways before Gwendolyn Gwynplaine, who three weeks before was called just plain Susie McTish down in Texas where she jerked soda in the corner drug store, breaks into front page stories because she has demanded $500,000 heart balm from the Playboy of Hollywood because he refused to buy her a home next to Charlie Chaplin's in Beverly Hills.

Whiskers are forgot. Valentino becomes passe. Gwendolyn Gwynplaine absorbs all light from Kleigs. "Dear Public" wants to see what kind of female she is who jumps from a Texas farm overnight to front pages of dailies.

Then Sally Shingles, late of Davenport, Iowa, is pronounced the finest specimen of corn-fed girlhood both sides of the North and South Poles. She made a big hit impersonating the second maid to Gloria Swanson in "A Poor Girl's Temptations—in the Big City." She is elected.

Sally is rushed around to the studio followed by half-dozen cameramen and "still" photographers, with the director apologizing at her heels for rushing her so, and within specified period, "dear public" is given "Girls for Sale" with Sally Shingles featured.

Twelve new American auto trucks have been placed in service on bus routes in Lima, Peru, and vicinity recently.

FOOTBALL

When Knute Rockne's rollicking horsemen gallop into the Rose Bowl at Pasadena on New Year's day in an attempt to twist the tails of Pop Warner's Leland Stanford Cardinals it will be the first time the Catholics have played on the Pacific coast and the third time a leading eleven from the middle west has clashed with a California team.

In 1894 Stanford defeated Chicago in a post-season tilt and in 1921 the University of California tumbled Ohio States, 28 to 0.

Harvard has defeated Oregon, Oregon smashed the University of Pennsylvania, and Washington State has taken Brown into camp in other noteworthy east-west contests, but memories of these games will be dimmed by the Notre Dame-Stanford clash.

Never has interest in football been as keen on the slopes of the Pacific as this year and never has a game de luxe, such as the Rose Bowl battle, been offered at the season's finale.

Stanford, should it lose to Notre Dame, and it dosen't look in the cards as though anything else could happen, will have no regrets. The Palo Alto institution has an eleven of veterans, one of the strongest redshirt teams in history.

Stanford's great drive from behind to finish its game with California in a 20-20 score makes Warner's outfit the strongest team west of the Rockies, with the possible exception of Andy Smith's Golden Bears. Smith's team, as the California-Stanford game demonstrated, hasn't the reserve power of the Cardinals. Neither has California such smashing ends as Stanford, nor as brilliant passing backs. Nor has California a Nevers.

Ernie Nevers, Stanford's huge fullback, is the greatest individual player the west has ever produced—the Coast's "Red" Grange. Like Grange, he has been stopped already this season, and Notre Dame's smashers may stop him again. Injured three times this season, Nevers was out of all of Stanford's big games, but he is expected to be in fine fettle for the Pasadena fray.

Sending Stanford against the powerful champions from Indiana will not bother Glenn Scobey Warner, the dean of American football coaches. It's an old story for him, dating back to 1899, when Warner brought the Carlisle Indians to San Francisco and Redwater and a few other players with picturesque names defeated California 2 to 0.

Warner came to Stanford this year and his success has been remarkable without a defeat, and as an anti-climax to the Notre Dame game, stopped California's long string of victories.

Stanford, with Warner as mentor, boasts interesting coaching history. No less personages than Walter Camp, who picks All-American elevens from a typewriter pitched not far from New Haven, and Fielding Yost, the great Michigander, years ago paved the way for Warner at Stanford.

Camp, for the first time since he became famous as a picker of mythical elevens, visited the Pacific coast this season and may sit in at the death New Year's Day.

Notre Dame will enter the lists a slight favorite, at least among the intelligensia of the gridiron.

BOXING NOTES

California, here we come!

That's the refrain the boys of the ring are shouting at the top of their voices right now as they grab the cars for the Golden State to sit in on the harvest expected from California's new long bout law.

Jack Britton, former welter champion; Billy Wells, so-called British welterweight titleholder; Pal Moran, Memphis near-champion; Spug Myers, Idaho lightweight; Jack Mason, Chicago middleweight, and scores of lesser lights, are already here and the whole blue book of fistians is on the way.

Just why Billy Wells thinks he should get a welcome in California is one of those w. k. mysteries.

Wells can fight but why doesn't he? He recently gave some miserable exhibitions in Los Angeles and Oakland and the fans were merrily bilked.

If the Englishman doesn't show any more of his onions than he did last year he ought to be thrown out of California rings.

Ted (Kid) Lewis, erstwhile British welter king, is reported on the way west.

Ted heard that Jack Britton was here flicking up the iron buttons and what a rush he made for the boat.

Ted and Jack have met twenty times. The strange thing is each of the score of bouts was a peach.

Britton, like Lewis, would do better to retire now. Jack lost to Jimmy Duffy in Oakland and copped from Billy Vincent, a fifth-rater, here. He still is a pretty boxer but just like a sunflower gone to seed.

Best evidence that Britton is through was shown here when he failed to attract more than half a house.

Golden Bears Prepare For New Year's Game

BERKELEY, Dec. 18. — In preparation for their New Year day clash with University of Pennsylvania, the California Bears hold their first practice session today since the Thursday before their "big game" with Stanford.

Coach Andy Smith returned from the east and watched his proteges limber up. Captain Horrell and Tut Imlay were the only absentees, both having gone on flying visits to their homes. They will report tomorrow.

Berkeley Eleven Will Play at Bakersfield

BERKELEY, Dec. 18.—Confident that they will return with the state championship, the Berkeley high school football squad numbering twenty-two, will entrain tonight for Bakersfield, where, on Saturday, they will meet the Bakersfield high eleven for the state title. Two practice sessions tomorrow at Bakersfield will put the final touches on the Berkeley training program.

Guatemala is to have an electric railway, with unusually narrow gauge, that will cost $3,000,000.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP by FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Promoters are face to face with the grim fact that only a boxing show with the most resounding names is calculated to draw big these days. Charley Weinert and Jack Sharkey drew no more than 4,000 spectators for their 12 round bout and at that there was the additional inducement of Eddie Garvey, the former Notre Dame football star.

As it turned out Garvey refused to box, but the fight that Weinert and Sharkey put up proved to be worthy of the biggest crowd that could have been packed into the building.

Don't make any mistake about Weinert; he is coming back fast. In the tenth round of the Sharkey bout as he sat in his corner after as fast and rough milling as two heavyweights have put up in a long time the Adonis was not even breathing heavily.

He gave one of those exhibitions of science prevailing over brute strength such as one often reads about but so seldom sees. But this Lithuanian who has adopted a famous ring cognomen and in fact could pass, from the looks of him, as a son of Erin, is a dangerous young man.

What he does not know about the fine points of boxing would fill a book, but when it comes to getting in close and hooking in lefts and rights that are laden with dynamite—particularly the right—Sharkey is there. He ought to get a lot of work around these parts, for he is strong, vicious and can take it as well as hand it out.

Never before had Sharkey been against so clever a big man as Weinert and the Jerseyman at once proceeded to show Jack all the varied uses to which a left-hand can be put in a boxing bout.

Sharkey must have thought that Weinert had more lefthands than a centipede has feet. Weinert made a left handed fight of it until late in the bout when he unhooked his starboard fin two or three times as a matter of sheer necessity.

All in all Weinert cut his rival pretty much to pieces, but he never slowed him up and took several hefty wallops himself. In fact he sustained two rights on the jaw which should convince anyone that the Adonis can take a wallop of mighty proportions as well as the next man. And that is coming back some.

People of Italy wear American-made shoes in preference to those from other countries.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1924

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Despite his victory in the Westchester open last October, Willie Macfarlane advises the writer that he contemplates no radical departure from his policy of taking proper care of the members of his club —Oakridge—at the expense of playing in tournaments the country round.

Macfarlane is unique in many ways but chiefly so in his attitude toward tourney play. He has never yet won a major tourney but this is due chiefly to his indifference on this score. He is more of an amateur at heart than a great many amateurs. And he believes he has a duty to his club.

He never prepares for the great competitions and when he does enter he regards them as sporting propositions in which there is some fun to be had.

Mac, like Macdonald Smith, is one of the few expert players who actually swing their clubs on all shots. Most golfers, good and bad, hit directly at the ball in rather a sharp downward plane. This is especially the case with respect to irons. But both Macfarlane and Smith have beautiful, easy, somewhat lazy swings and the ease of their play is most impressive.

In this Westchester tournament, Johnny Farrell finished two to Macfarlane. It will be recalled that earlier Farrell defeated Macfarlane in the Professional championship at French Lick after a close and hard fought match by 3 and 2. Oakridge and Quaker ridge, where Farrell holds forth, are neighboring clubs, and naturally there is a lot of rivalry between the two men. But they are great friends nonetheless.

In the coaching situation that now exists at Harvard not many voices have been heard in defense of Robert Fisher, the present coach. But now a former Harvard player, Fordyce Blake, comes forward with an argument that may be regarded by Harvard critics of Fisher to require some answering.

"With regard to Harvard's defense deteriorating Mr. Blake sets forth that during the first five years of Haughton's administration at Harvard the total sum of Crimson scoring against Yale consisted of drop kicks by Kennard and Brickley.

After that, with a tremendous wealth of exceptionally fine material, the Cambridge offense took a brace.

"It is interesting, however," continues Blake, "to compare Fisher's six years' work and Haughton's first six years. During this period the record against Yale was as follows: Fisher four victories and two defeats. Haughton three victories, two ties and one defeat." Which shows what can be done with figures—especially when Princeton and Dartmouth are left out of the reckoning.
